RE: REQUEST FOR SLEEP APNEA PROCLAMATION

Dear Governor Haley,

As you may (must) know, I have been seeking Governor Proclamations by all fifty Governor's following the passing of my mother in 2012, Helen Marie Bousquet.

I have now obtained 30 of 50, and enclose them for your review. Massachusetts and Louisiana have become the last two received following Oscar winning actor Jeff Bridges' support of my mission to make certain my mother's passing saves the lives of others whom are completely unfamiliar with what this condition even is.

To give you an example, a few of these Governors sent me "Narcolepsy Proclamations," they themselves not even aware of what Sleep Apnea was. When informed, they then sent me the correct Proclamations.

The major symptom of Sleep Apnea is snoring. 95% of American's who have this condition, don't even know that they have it. It's a national sleeping giant in the room. 30 Governor's agree now, and as the last 20 in this country whom have yet to issue this Proclamation, I ask that you please do so now. Fifteen of the enclosed thirty originally declined, but later issued the Proclamation as they realized it's importance, avoiding typical localized procedural red tape.

Please send the Sleep Apnea Proclamation to the address above, and help to educate your citizens of this condition. By doing so, you both help save your citizens lives, and make certain that my mother's life mattered. It certainly does to me.

This is an important issue among females, especially. As a female Governor, I'm personally at a loss as to why all of my requests for this, to you, have gone ignored.

Regards,

Brian Evans
