SC Cotton Growers’Annual Meeting

The SC Cotton Growers’ (SCCG) Annual Meeting will be held at the Pee Dee Research & Education Center in Florence on Wednesday, February 27, 2002. Sponsored by the SC Cotton Board and Clemson University Cooperative Extension Service, the meeting is scheduled to begin at 9 a.m. and end at 3 p.m.

Representatives from the Southern Cotton Growers’ Association, National Cotton Council, SC Association of Independent Crop Consultants, and Cotton Incorporated will provide valuable information and reports for the state’s cotton growers. In addition, the SC Cotton Board sponsored research projects summary and survey results will be provided.

Topics on the agenda include: U.S. Yield and Fiber Quality Trends, Nationwide Status of the Boll Weevil, the 2001 Cotton Crop in SC, and Stink Bug Issues in SC.

In addition to valuable information, participants will receive commercial and private applicators pesticide re-certification credits and Certified Crop Advisor (CCA) credits will be offered.

SCCG Annual Meeting sponsors include: Carolinas Cotton Growers Cooperative, Clemson University Cooperative Extension Service, Farm Credit of South Carolina, SC Cotton Board, and SC Farm Bureau Federation. Door prizes will be provided compliments of Aventis CropScience, BASF Corporation, Delta and Pine Land Company, Monsanto, and Stoneville Pedigreed Seed Company.

Growers and others in the business of cotton who want to communicate with the SC Cotton Board should call: District I---Clayton Lowder (803-469-0737), Chairman-Sumter; Dale Player, Secretary/Treasurer-Bishopville (803-484-5845); James N. Chapman-Hartsville (843-339-1165); District 2--- Roy Baxley-Minturn (843-774-9817); David Lynch, Vice Chairman-Bennettsville (843-479-3734); and District 3---Carl E. Brown, Jr.-Aiken (803-648-5438); and John W. Hane-Ft. Motte (803-874-4216).

Fifteenth Annual Wild Quail Management Seminars Scheduled

Bobwhite quail populations in South Carolina and the southeast have been declining steadily over the past 35-40 years due to land use change and reduction in suitable habitat. The 15th Annual Wild Quail Management Seminars, sponsored by the S.C. Department of Natural Resources (DNR) and the S.C. State Committee of Quail Unlimited, are designed to instruct landowners and land managers in the proper techniques of creating habitat that will support native populations of bobwhite quail.

Two seminars will be conducted over a three-day period, March 7-9, 2002, at the Webb Wildlife Center in Hampton County. The registration fee is $75 and includes meals, overnight accommodations and seminar materials.

"Properties that consistently carry medium-to high-density wild quail populations are actively managed to provide quail with all the habitat components necessary throughout the year," said Judy Barnes, DNR small game biologist. "These seminars are designed to improve quail habitat management skills and the information is presented so that anyone with an interest can implement these practices on their own property."

Field demonstrations and classroom instruction will focus on habitat practices including firebreak establishment, prescribed burning, timber management, brush control, discing for natural foods and supplemental food patch plantings. Presentations also will be given on wild quail natural history, biology, diseases and parasites, predation and other factors that may be contributing to the population decline. Speakers will include wildlife and forestry professionals from state and federal agencies.

Approximately 700 people have attended the seminar since its inception in 1987. These sportsmen and sportswomen have positively affected thousands of acres across South Carolina by applying basic techniques to improve habitat on their lands.

Space is limited, so register early to reserve a slot in one of the two sessions. For more information write: Quail Management Seminars, DNR, PO Box 167, Columbia, SC 29202 or call the DNR Small Game Project 803-734-4306.

Pesticide Certification Exam Fees Increased

Budget cuts have forced Clemson University to increase fees charged for pesticide certification exams and to add a fee to take the pesticide applicator exam.

Examinees will also be required to prepay and pre-register two weeks prior to an exam session. The changes went into effect Jan. 1.

"The Department of Pesticide Regulation is unfortunately one of the victims of a significant statewide budget cut," said Neil Ogg, director of Regulatory and Public Service Programs. "These increases and new fee charges will allow us to maintain our current level of service to the pest control industry and to the people of South Carolina."

The private pesticide applicators license fee will increase from $1 to $2 per year, which is pro-rated and dependent on your certification block. The commercial applicators license fee and the pest control operators’ business license fee will both double. The commercial applicators license fee will go up to $50 and the operators’ business license fee will increase to $150.

The following changes and charges for the pesticide certification exam now apply:

- 1. Core exam: $75
- 2. Category Exam: $25
- 3. 12A, 12B, and 12D categories: $50 each
- 4. Dealer exam: $25
- 5. Pre-registration is required. Fees must be paid two weeks before an exam session. There will be no admittance to exam without prepayment.
- 6. Students, with proof of current ID, are only required to pay $25.

"Though we recognize the inconvenience the license and exam fee will place on our clients," said Ogg, "without the additional funding, it will be difficult to maintain our day-to-day operations, which are stretched to the limit already."

For more information on fee increases, new fees and requirements, exam dates and locations, contact the Department of Pesticide Regulation at 864-646-2150, the Extension office in your county or check out the regulatory web page at drpsp.clemson.edu.

Love Blossoms in the Bulletin

Valentine’s Day is a special time of the year when people pledge their love for one another with special sentiments like hearts and flowers. Traditionally, the Market Bulletin has been a valuable tool for buying and selling agricultural products, especially during the holidays---even Valentine’s Day. A gentleman can find and purchase certain types of plants and flowers for his special someone. Or, a lady can find a new piece of farm equipment for her gentleman. But do you think you would ever find true love in the Market Bulletin?

Seventeen years ago Debbie Hill did just that! She placed an ad for a 9N Ford tractor in the Bulletin. Having little knowledge about the piece of machinery, she decided to sell it. Unfortunately for Debbie, only one person responded to her ad. After many inquiries about the tractor, including what attachments were with it, he decided not to purchase it. Now one would think this would be a terrible ending to the story, but the fact is the story didn’t end there.

Chuck Hill called her several times at both her office and her home to ask her about the tractor. Then during one conversation, she let him know that she needed a phone installed. He jumped to the occasion and came out to help her. She made her specialty for his lunch---stuffed mushroom caps---and the rest is history!

Debbie remarks that when she first met Chuck she found him to be quite the opposite of her. He was what she refers to as "country" and she was a "city girl." During their first meeting, when he came to see the tractor, she laughingly admits she wasn’t that impressed. She was especially horrified to find out he was having goat stew for dinner that night!

Over time, their conversations helped her get to know him. She found they actually had many things in common, things that bound them together. He taught her to fish and she ended up catching the biggest fish between the two of them.

After almost sixteen years of marriage together, Debbie Hill credits their success to many things. She says that the "Commonalties have helped, for instance the things we like to do together like fishing and camping," but she is quick to state, "Being very tolerant and patient of the differences is good too. It is what makes our marriage spicy."

The Hills have prospered together as well. They opened up a mobile home park in Powdersville, and it has thrived for the past fifteen or so years. Debbie is an insurance claims adjuster, and Chuck is a homebuilder. Together they have a wonderful daughter who is fourteen and attends Wren High School in Piedmont.

Debbie Hill loves the story of how they met. Since Chuck was the only one to respond to the ad, she feels that their meeting and eventual marriage was a blessing from God. By the way, he never did buy that tractor. Debbie managed to sell it right before they got married.

The Bulletin has managed to help many people over the years, but never in my wildest dreams did I imagine that two people could find love in our pages. This is not the first instance of a marriage developed from the Market Bulletin. Twenty or so years ago we wrote a story on Mrs. Iola Tripp and how she met her husband through a housekeeping ad in the 1930’s. So always remember that with the Bulletin you never know what you’ll get! Occasionally, love blossoms in the Bulletin!

Have a wonderful and Happy Valentine’s Day from the SC Department of Agriculture!
