The Huntington Beach State Park staff joined forces Thursday with the South Carolina Department of Natural Resources SCORE program to restore and enhance oyster reef habitat in Murrells Inlet by recycling oyster shells. These oyster shells will provide new attachment sites for the next generation of oysters, which will help improve water quality, control erosion, and provide habitat for many other species of marine life! How cool is that?

Brian S Boynton That's awesome.

Are you looking for a winter 2017/18 Workamper? Or do you know if a local park looking?
Thanks
