Projections for When States Will Exhaust Federal CHIP Funding

States are closely tracking their CHIP budgets as they wait for action regarding the future of federal funding for the program. Using data provided by the Medicaid and CHIP Payment and Access Commission (MACPAC), NASHP reached out to all states in March 2015 to collect their most up-to-date projections and compiled the information in a table. All but one state would exhaust federal funding during federal fiscal year (FFY) 2016; notably, ten states would exhaust federal funds in the first quarter of FFY2016. Because state funding projections can fluctuate, NASHP will continue to track this data and update this table as long as federal CHIP funding remains uncertain beyond FFY2015.

Making Multipayer Reform Work: What Can Be Learned From Medical Home Initiatives

Seventeen multipayer medical home initiatives launched between 2008 and 2014, all navigated four critical decision-making points germane to any multipayer payment model: convening stakeholders; establishing provider participation criteria; determining payment; and measuring performance. In the April issue of *Health Affairs*, the NASHP medical home team explores the lessons learned from these experiences. Heeding these lessons will help inform those leading multipayer efforts “to better anticipate and navigate known obstacles and improve their chances for successful implementation.”

New Resource: State Pediatric Medicaid and CHIP Medical Home Initiatives

NASHP has partnered with The National Center for Medical Home Implementation (NCMHI) to create a state at-a-glance table which provides an overview of pediatric medical home initiatives occurring through Medicaid and the Child Health Insurance Program (CHIP). By learning about ongoing pediatric medical home initiatives in your state, pediatric clinicians, practices, state Title V agencies, American Academy of Pediatrics chapters, and others can gain insights on how to integrate their work and coordinate efforts across multiple systems.
