

From: Law360 In-Depth <news-q@law360.com>
To: Adams, ChaneyChaneyAdams@gov.sc.gov
Date: 8/22/2016 10:18:51 AM
Subject: Exxon Global Warming Fight Opens New Frontier For Corporate Speech

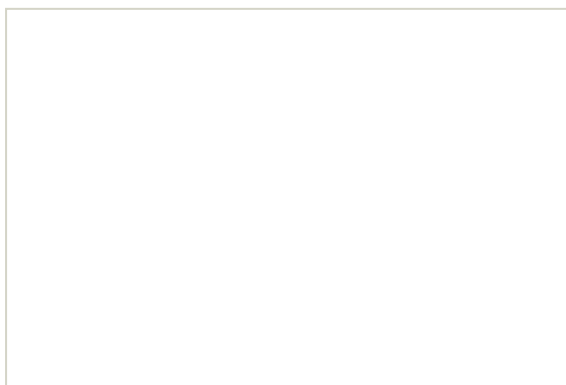

Feature

Exxon Global Warming Fight Opens New Frontier For Corporate Speech

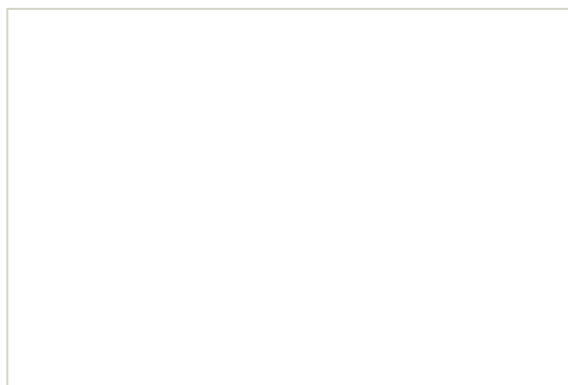

By Ed Beeson

The oil giant's use of the First Amendment in a bid to block government investigations into its statements about climate change is pushing the concept of corporate free speech into new territory.

News Analysis

Dispatch

Mob Mentality: Chevron's Donziger Triumph Could Inspire RICO Copycats

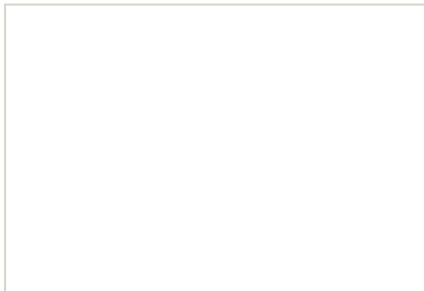

By Max Stendahl

Chevron's successful use of RICO to target plaintiffs lawyer Steven Donziger may encourage other corporate defendants to wield the mafia-strength weapon against the plaintiffs bar.

The Firms That Could Rival Cravath — In Hollywood

By Ed Beeson

Cravath Swaine & Moore LLP founder Paul Cravath may have inspired a new novel and film adaptation about the patent battle between Thomas Edison and George Westinghouse, but he is far from the only law firm namesake with a backstory fit for a history movie.

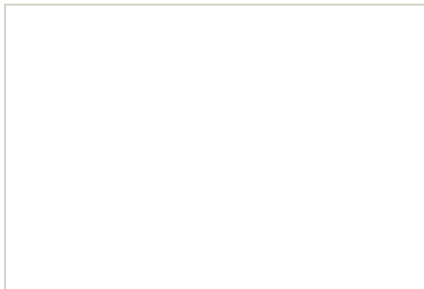

Sidebar

Shira Scheindlin On The Brooklyn Bridge And Other Inspirations

By Aeбра Coe

Shira Scheindlin revealed details of her personal life during a 10-minute interview with Law360, discussing her daily walks over the Brooklyn Bridge, the world leaders who inspire her, and the contents of her bucket list.

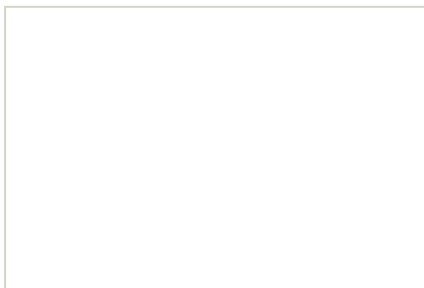

Secret Lives of Lawyers

Bass Berry & Sims' Mark Manner Searches For Other Worlds

By Daniel Wilson

When corporate lawyer Mark Manner isn't trying to help clients explore the intricacies of a business deal, he looks instead to explore the mysteries of the universe, observing distant stars to help researchers make discoveries that could help answer age-old questions about the existence of life "out there."

You Can Quote Me On That

The Latest And Best In Legal Talk

Dodge City, Tears For Flint, Fakin' Bacon

By Richard McVay

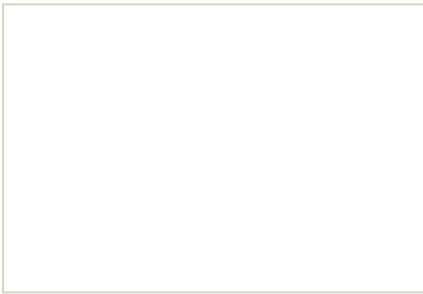

Legal minds since our last edition talked about convicted officials, Wyatt Earp and lying about bacon. Here are the best lines from the legal world.

Op-Ed

High Stakes: Shaping The Post-Scalia Supreme Court

By James Brosnahan, Morrison & Foerster LLP

Philosophically, I have three hopes for the next Supreme Court justice. I hope the new justice starts considering any case with doubt about what is the right result. I hope the new justice comfortably works with induction and deduction. And I hope the new justice has a willingness and ability to consider the effect of a decision on those affected by it.

Op-Ed

Stop The Press — Trademark Coverage's Mess

By Jane Shay Wald, Irell & Manella LLP

When Law360 In-Depth invited Jane Shay Wald to write an op-ed on a topic of her choice, the Icon of IP said she would be happy to discuss the problem of how the mainstream media frequently misunderstands — and misrepresents — trademark issues. Little did we know she would say it in verse.

Not sure if your firm subscribes? Ask your librarian.

We hope you found this message to be useful.

However, if you'd rather not receive future emails of this sort,
you may unsubscribe here.

Please DO NOT reply to this email. For customer support inquiries, please call 1-646-783-7100 or visit our Contact Us page.

Law360 | Portfolio Media, Inc, 111 West 19th Street, 5th Floor, New York, NY 10011