So, I see from Gavin's article, and by looking at ethics filings, that Haley has not reimbursed SLED, DNR or DPS for campaign-related security expenses since January 2015. Why did those payments stop? According to Gavin's article, no one even bothered to review the expenses after she was re-elected. Why?

Quote from Haley press secretary Chaney Adams, "When the governor stopped running an active campaign for re-election by the end of 2014, she stopped regularly attending campaign events, and a quarterly review of campaign-related security costs became inefficient - in 2015, the total reimbursable costs for the year were only $142.23. These costs were paid in conjunction with recent reimbursable costs, and, now that she has begun attending more campaign events for other candidates this year, a quarterly review of security costs will continue."

On Background: Since January 2015, state law enforcement agencies (SLED, DPS, DNR) have been reimbursed for the following campaign-related events:

What are the 13 trips that Haley is now reimbursing for since January 2015 and how do those reimbursements break down?

- Bevin for Governor (KY)
- McCrory for Governor (NC)
- Hanaway for Governor (MO)
- Collins for House
- Rubio for President
- Huggins for House
- Boyd for Senate
- Skipper for Senate
- Pyle for Senate
- Duncan for House
- Climer for Senate

- Talley for Senate
- Comstock for Congress (VA)

Why is the Movement Fund paying for it this time?

Quote from Haley press secretary Chaney Adams, "In accordance with the State Ethics Act, third parties such as The Movement Fund are able to pay those costs."

Have those reimbursements been made?

Yes.
