South Carolina State Parks

at 19:00:01 on 7/31/2018 UTC

#2 on Director Phil's list of things to see & do in South Carolina's state parks - The hardest to see and experience of my top ten: the overlook atop Table Rock Mountain. An amazing view, especially at sunrise. The view of the reservoir, Caesars Head and the "stool mountain"- breathtaking. More spectacular than the view is the feeling. Getting there is no "walk in the park," but once you are there you feel the presence of this special place. <https://southcarolinaparks.com/table-rock>

Marianne Loheide Yoonie Leake we need to go here 😊😊

Larry Reed An old but favorite memory from Table Rock SP!

My wife and I had a long, relaxed, and peaceful picnic at the summit, grateful not to have seen another soul all day, then reluctantly started back down again.

My poor wife took a mere three steps on the trail, then slipped and badly twisted her ankle, injured from decades of roller-blading. And not even a trace of cell phone signal back then. Now she finally understood why I always carried a comprehensive first-aid kit on all my hikes, whether leading them or not!

Between my hiking staff, another fashioned from a downed branch, two ACE bandages, a flexible splint, Ibuprofen, and enough #%$& language to make a sailor blush (I had no idea she even *knew* some of those words 😊), we slowly and carefully made our way back down.

Some of the rock faces were a bit tricky, but once we got past them to the well-groomed lower trail, we made up time and reached the trailhead before dusk.

Surprisingly, after only a day of rest, we were out again WW kayaking and doing lots of short waterfall hikes the rest of the week with nary a complaint. I sure looked at her with a whole new level of respect after that! 🙌❤️ (PS - I used to climb TR every Thanksgiving as a teen... did it get taller somehow? 😊)
