

From: The Motley Fool <fool@foolsubs.com>
To: Kester, Tonykester@aging.sc.gov
Date: 10/23/2014 10:04:16 AM
Subject: Is this tiny $600-million company the next Microsoft?

---

Dear Wealth Seeker,

If you stood this company up next to Google, you'd need a microscope to see it.

If Apple were a room, you could fit 949 copies of this company inside of it.

But if you look closely, you'll see that this teeny-tiny company bears a striking resemblance to Microsoft in 1986... right before it went on a 60,000+% run.

How so?

It makes the essential component of a $19 trillion technology... a technology that has the guys who practically invented the computer declaring "a new era of computing."

The details are just ahead inside a brand-new research report from The Motley Fool.

So if you're like me... if you're the kind of investor who has been looking to squeeze the last remaining millions out of this historic bull market (but just didn't know how)... this could be the one stock you can't afford to miss.

To find out how you can get invested today, please quickly click the button below.

To your lasting wealth,

Ryan Katon
The Motley Fool

Having trouble seeing this email? View on Web

All numbers as of August 29, 2014. Ryan Katon owns shares of Google (C shares) and has the following options: long January 2015 $1100 calls on Google (C shares). The Motley Fool owns shares of Apple, Google (A & C shares), and Microsoft.

This is a promotional message from The Motley Fool | 2000 Duke St. | Alexandria, VA 22314
Legal Information. Copyright ©1995-2014 The Motley Fool. All rights reserved.

To prevent this from getting swept up by overzealous email filters, add Fool@foolsubs.com to your address book.

If you no longer wish to receive this email, please unsubscribe now.
You may also add, change, or remove any other Motley Fool email subscription.