Senator Martin,

I wanted to follow up with you about the Ethics Commission's Accountability Report (attached) and what it cites regarding number of complaints and the number of persons within their jurisdiction. According to the Accountability Report, the Ethics Act applies to approximately 285,000 state employees; however that does not mean that the Ethics Commission is actively overseeing them. The Ethics Act also applies to approximately 10,000 public officials and they are required to file forms (Statement of Economic Interest and Campaign Disclosure) with the Commission. The table below details the number of complaints filed over the last 10 years. Our office is reviewing how complaints were resolved in a given year; however in our cursory review, it appears that most complaints were filed and initiated by the Commission due to failure to a report (SEI, Campaign Disclosure, Lobbying Disclosure) and then a fine was assessed.

Please let me know if Heather is ready to share the new amendment. I am happy to contact her as well.

Thanks,
Swati
