Update from the Aging Network Volunteer Resource Center

Given your past interest in the Aging Network's Volunteer Collaborative, we wanted to bring you up-to-date on n4a's latest volunteerism project, now known as the Aging Network Volunteer Resource Center.

The Aging Network Volunteer Resource Center (ANVRC) offers workshops, webinars, materials, and consulting assistance to build the capacity of the Aging Network and to increase the number of older volunteers engaged in meaningful work. For more information, contact ANVRC director Peter Lane (plane@n4a.org).

In October, the ANVRC released a consumer-directed brochure and a toolkit on the health benefits of volunteering. A limited number of brochures are available for the cost of postage. Please visit the n4a Publications website page for ordering information.

And, this week, n4a's Eldercare Locator launched a campaign to combat social isolation. Volunteers certainly play a role in decreasing the risk for those who face isolation and for many volunteers, their activities are a great way to get out and meet new people, learn a skill or simply enjoy themselves by contributing to their community. Here is a link to the announcement and brochure (including a USA Today article about the campaign). Check it out and let us know if you use any of these materials in your volunteer recruitment efforts.
