It goes back to the 3% raise they gave last year...there's basically a one-year lag between when they pass the raise and when agencies/universities have to say how they want to allocate that additional money within their budgets. So that boilerplate line just means we were OK with how those agencies/universities wanted to use the money they received to cover the costs of those raises. Just a quirk of the way they do the accounting here.

Another question about bullets in section: * That the pay raise allocation be distributed as requested by the University.

This was in most agency sections, what does it specifically refer to? Did I miss something?

They're in the same PDF. The 2-year campuses are gone because we rolled them into Columbia/Palmetto in 20A.

where we landed, since we'd talked several times about the Palmetto College restructuring. There's also a favorable reference to it in the cover letter.

The footers are a little screwed up just because of the process I used to extract these pages and PDF them. Also, bear in mind that the pages are supposed to face each other, so each campus' chart is two pages wide...they're supposed to be on opposing pages.
