South Carolina State Parks

at 16:09:42 on 5/11/2015 UTC · 🌐

These families camped with us during our recent Palmetto Backcountry Campout at Jones Gap State Park. The campout was for families used to camping at parks with water and electric, and our rangers showed them how easy it is to camp without those amenities. All camping supplies were packed in. The group enjoyed campfire stories, s'mores, a scavenger hunt, and a hike to Jones Gap Falls. Make sure to check our website for more programs like this:

Markus Amoungus Awesome! Im glad they got that experience. I can't imagine camping in a parking area with a bunch of RVs and campers. To me that's not camping. Life is so much better 5 miles from the nearest road, camped out by a river or waterfall, with no one around but your little group and the fireflies.
