One additional question...

Why does the response filed April 21 by the state ask for the motion to extend the deadline be granted only in conjunction with a briefing schedule? (Emphasis added). What is the significance of the briefing schedule?

My apologies for neglecting to include that question in my previous email. Thanks!

Hello Chaney,
While checking PACER a few moments ago, I noticed the state filed a response opposing the federal government's motion for extension.

The state's response on Page 2 says the defendants plan to file a motion to dismiss in advance of the April 25 deadline. A filing to that effect hasn't quite made it into PACER yet, though I'm sure it will.

When we last spoke, you expressed a desire for us to let you know right away when we notice a new filing and need to seek comment. Since we're at that point, I'm seeking comment on the filing. Here are my specific questions:

- Why is it important for the state respond to the federal government's motion for extension to reply?
- The response the state filed April 21 states "the state understands that on Monday, April 25, the federal defendants will file a motion to dismiss." How does the state know this?

I have copied Thomas Gardiner on this email since this is his beat. I'm contacting you know since you asked to be notified as soon as we discovered a new filing. A copy of the state's response is attached for your convenience. Thanks!
