Yeah, I'm open then. That's instead of 1PM this Friday, right? Not "in addition to"?

I'm at my desk. We can talk in the morning though. Also, Tuesday afternoon – can you do policy/budget briefing?
Thanks, Leigh

The U.S. Department of Labor, Employment Training Administration, announced on September 19, 2012, a $14.1 million award to Greenville Technical College for the SC ACCELERATE Partnership project. The partnership includes five SC technical colleges – Spartanburg, Lowcountry, Tri-County, Trident, and York – and Clemson University.

Greenville Technical College is the lead partner for the project. SC ACCELERATE will focus on advanced manufacturing.

We were excited to be notified that United States Secretary of Labor, Hilda Solis, will visit Greenville Technical College on Friday, September 28th, to announce the project in person. The Secretary's schedule was confirmed today, and she will arrive on campus at approximately 10:45 a.m. for an opportunity to meet and greet, a brief facility tour, and a press conference.

We invite you to be with us as the Secretary announces this exciting news. Please let us know no later than noon on Thursday whether you will join us by emailing my office at rita.snyder@gvltec.edu.

Thank you,

Keith Miller, Ph. D.
President
