Spoke with State Department this morning. Specific to the 15,000 increase, they do not know where those individuals will be placed or what countries they will come from. Those are just approved slots for refugees that make the cut in FY16. Placement decisions don't happen until after the refugee has passed screening and been approved by DHS for entry. In the meantime, State is going to send over some background information on the screening process, and on the specifics of how resettlement functions in states without a State's involvement (i.e., if a state decides not to submit a state plan).

Josh - The Governor would like for us to reach out to DHS to get more facts about this new information from Sec. Kerry. Can David do this?

Thanks.

Same – we have not been contacted by State or the Federal Delegation regarding this announcement to increase US acceptance of refugees.

In terms of position –

The Governor's position on this issue is clear – our nation's role in international humanitarian aid is integral to maintaining our national security, promoting international commerce, and maintaining our moral obligation to aid those persecuted for religious or ethnic reasons. However, her first priority as Governor is the safety of our citizens and communities which is why she is so disappointed that the Obama Administration had not yet contacted her office to discuss South Carolina's role in this expanded refugee effort. Further, they have offered no assurances that the vetting process will remain effective under this expanded effort. Such assurances must be given to states if they are to be expected to further open our schools and homes to additional arrivals.

Good morning –

I saw over the weekend that Secretary of State John Kerry said the US would increase the number of refugees it accepts next year – from 70,000 to 85,000 – and some of them would be Syrian.

Has anyone from the federal government contacted the governor's office about hosting more refugees in South Carolina? Also, what is the governor's position on hosting refugees from the Syrian crisis? Massachusetts' governor has gone on the record saying he's open to accepting some of the refugees.

I'm working on a 3 p.m. deadline.

Thanks,
Ryan
