<http://nativeamericacalling.com/thursday-october-1-2015-alzheimers-dementia-taking-care-of-the-caretaker/>

For those families who are dealing with Alzheimer's or dementia, having a caretaker can be very helpful. Caretakers must also make sure they are taking care of themselves as these illnesses can be stressful for the caretaker. Do you care for a family member with dementia? How do you cope with the challenges of caretaking? How can communities make sure caretakers are also being taken care of?

Guests:

Jordan Lewis (Aleut, Native Village of Naknek) – assistant professor, University of Washington School of Social Work

Jan Dougherty – family and community services director, Banner Alzheimer's Institute

Lucinda Martin (Navajo) – caregiver research specialist for Navajo Area Agency on Aging
