Katherine:

In today's call, CSID recommended that we leave the language we discussed yesterday as is. Attached are both options. You have a minute to talk with me and Joe Dusenbury about this?
Thanks

Milton

Subject: Radio and Newspaper Ads and Hotline Script

Since I will be out tomorrow, attached are the radio ad, newspaper ad, and hotline script that needs to be sent to CSID as soon as a decision is made on the language. You will find that both wordings are highlighted in the attached documents. Once a decision is made, please delete the language that is not being used and send to Travis Torreyson.

NOTE: Since we do need to make sure that dependents and businesses are included in the wording, I thought that it may be good to use individual taxpayers, their dependents, and businesses whose information was compromised in the 2012 Department of Revenue security breach, may be eligible for this coverage. This is a combination of Katherine Veldran's wording and our original wording. It's not really changing what we've said in the past, but clarifying as Consumer Affairs has suggested. If we don't want to use this wording, we can go back to the "If your information was compromised in the 2012 DOR security breach, you may be eligible for this coverage."

Thanks!

Chrystal
