Dear Gov. Haley,

Over the past months I've written you with suggestions about positioning your image for your run for higher office. For example, being "green" by planting trees in the medians of the interstate highways.

It occurs to me that you can gain a high national profile by championing a group of people in our society who are grossly unrecognized and unappreciated. In fact you are a member of that group so you would be perfect as one who can bring recognition to this group. - The spouses of Military Personnel. This has to be the most difficult job in our society and their story deserves to be told. We should all give them our support.

Domestic violence is a problem and has many defenders. Military spouses have no one to my knowledge.

Food for thought. Good luck -

Sincerely,
Robert H. Kennedy
