Voting 2016

Ms. Haley, I'm writing to you this morning out of frustration after going to my voting center to cast my most important vote! Upon my arrival, I noticed a young man recruiting votes just outside the facility. He was busy with an older couple, so I went inside, cast my vote and as I was leaving, asked the gentleman why he was stationed where he was. His response was that he was a supporter of Jeb Bush, and showed me a letter by some lawyer friend of Jeb's that gave him permission to be closer than the two hundred foot (200') requirement. I was also told by an attorney who just happened to be campaigning for Ted Cruz, and her response was also the two hundred foot requirement. (She and two others were at this required distance, if not more). I went back and videoed this person, and then went inside the precinct to ask for the head leader. I told him what was going on and he came outside to talk with the man. My frustration is, if this man were just standing there, people would pass him by. He solicited every person that he could, right outside a voting precinct. Yes, most people have their minds made up. BUT, did this gentleman sway any illegitimately! I tried to contact my local voting officials, with no response. Regards. KAF
