

From: Moore, Camlin <CamlinMoore@gov.sc.gov>
To:
Date: 4/11/2016 8:24:19 AM
Subject: SC Front Pages – Monday, April 11, 2016

SC Front Pages – Monday, April 11, 2016

The Post and Courier

FOUNDED 1803 •  WINNER OF THE 2015 PULITZER PRIZE FOR PUBLIC SERVICE

Monday, April 11, 2016

POSTANDCOURIER.COM

Charleston, S.C. $1.00

Wave of lawsuits a growing worry for police

Ruling in N. Charleston Taser case spotlights impact of heightened scrutiny on law enforcement

BY ANDREW KNAPP
aknapp@postandcourier.com

A North Charleston policeman should not have used a Taser three times on a motorist who was blasting music and must now face a civil trial for alleged constitutional violations, a federal appeals court has ruled.

To some observers, federal judges' rebuke of this officer and others accused of civil rights violations around the South, along with sustained public scrutiny of police practices in the wake of officer-involved deaths nationwide, have made law enforcement a ripe environment for litigation.

The S.C. Insurance Reserve Fund, the state-run program that backs governments statewide, is paying out more in recent years to settle civil rights claims against the North Charleston police, according to data obtained through the S.C. Freedom of Information Act. The annual total for all claims in 2012 and 2013 was around $250,000, it rose to $400,000 in 2014 and hit $730,000 last year. None of that includes the $6.5 million that went to the family of Walter Scott, who was fatally shot by a city officer a year ago.

Please see TASER, Page A4

Taser statistics

Police in North Charleston have recorded a steady drop in Taser uses since 2010, when the city adopted policy changes that the U.S. Department of Justice recommended nationwide. A lawsuit headed for trial this year stems from an officer's Taser use two years before that. Here are the numbers of Taser uses since the changes went into effect:

2010:	224
2011:	178
2012:	153
2013:	114
2014:	115
2015:	75

—Source: North Charleston Police Department yearly use of force analyses

Birds vs. beachgoers?

Key food source for shorebirds another hurdle for renourishment

A shorebird roams the sand in search of food at Folly Beach. Renourishment makes the worms they eat less abundant.

BY BO PETERSEN
bpeters@postandcourier.com

Folly Beach needs beach renourishment sand again. The Isle of Palms needs to renourish. Edisto Beach is planning another round. The work has become more frequent and enormously expensive.

Now there's the worms.

Beach renourishment causes a long-term decline in the abundance of tiny worms in the sand that shorebirds eat, according to a recently released University of California at San Diego study. That could threaten the survival of projected species like red knots and plovers that migrate long distances and need the food to survive the trips.

That spells permitting trouble.

Those scurrying birds in the tidewash could drastically curtail large-scale renourishment crucial to swarms of summer beachgoers, the tourism economy and residents of beach communities.

The impact on endangered or threatened species already is enough of an environmental concern that the projects approved must avoid digging during sea turtle nesting season. Shorebird concerns have delayed and jeopardized projects, such as the restoration of nearly eroded-to-ruin Folly Beach County Park in 2013.

"Shorebirds tend to congregate at inlets, but they will use the entire length of island shoreline depending on the abundance and distribution of food resources," said Melissa Birnb, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service biologist. "A lot of our developed beaches no longer provide suitable habitat for many species of shorebirds because they are not able to nest during the spring and summer or rest and feed undisturbed during migration and winter."

Please see BIRDS, Page A4

Clinton Trump

Rivals put focus on delegates

Critical calculations shaping campaigns

BY LAURIE KELLMAN
and LISA LERER
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Democratic and Republican presidential candidates are coming to terms with the cold mathematical reality of chasing delegates ahead of their nominating conventions, with front-runners Hillary Clinton and Donald Trump driving for challenge-proof majorities against rivals who won't go away.

For Trump, who remains well short of the 1,237 delegates he needs to clinch the GOP nod, that means his campaign focuses on developing a delegate-centered strategy akin to the one that rival Ted Cruz has pursued for months.

"A more traditional approach is needed and Donald Trump recognizes that," Paul Manafort, Trump's new delegate chief, said Sunday on NBC's "Meet the Press."

Even so, the billionaire developer later in the day complained that the system is "corrupt" and that it's unfair that "it's not right" that the person who wins the most votes may not be the nominee. If denied the GOP nomination, Trump told a crowd in Rochester, N.Y., "You're going to have a big problem, folks."

Please see DELEGATES, Page A5

Haley offers plan to lure teachers to rural schools

But shortage already hurts current S.C. effort

BY SEANNA ADCOX
sadcov@postandcourier.com

COLUMBIA — The teacher shortage in poor, rural districts in South Carolina is so bad, the state is considering offering would-be instructors a way to graduate from college debt free.

The catch? They have to spend eight years in the state's neediest districts, where turnover is the worst and the closest Wal-Mart can be up to 45 minutes away. There's another, perhaps even bigger, hurdle with Gov. Nikki Haley's proposal: The state doesn't have enough teachers interested in its current $5 million loan-forgiveness program.

"We're in deep trouble," said Melanie Barton, director of South Carolina's Education Oversight Committee. "We used to go to Ohio and Pennsylvania a lot to get teachers. Now those states don't have surpluses."

The teacher shortage is nationwide. In South Carolina, colleges are graduating about 2,000 fewer teachers than needed. Many college students don't want to become teachers and the ones who do typically don't want to work in remote places. States are offering to wipe away college loans or increase salaries, but the incentives haven't enticed enough teachers.

In Indiana, the Legislature recently passed (March 22) the "Next Generation Hoosier Educators Scholarship" rewarding students who commit to

Please see TEACHERS, Page A4

Inside

SPORTS
Shocking Masters meltdown leads to surprising victor. C1

BUSINESS
Mount Pleasant tech firm pairs students, manufacturers. D1

NATION
Kerry will not apologize for Hiroshima during visit. A6

Despite obstacles, there's no plan to scrap recycling

BY BRENDA RINDGE
brindge@postandcourier.com

It's been more than six months since Charleston County and its recycling handler parted ways, but the effects still reverberate throughout the Lowcountry.

Recycling has become more difficult for many.

The county's contract with Hartsville-based recycler Sonoco ended in July while the market for some recycled materials has fallen off. Both have caused Lowcountry officials to rethink their recycling programs and have forced residents to change their habits.

"Recycling is very challenging right now with the price of commodities," said Dorchester County Public Works Director Jason Carraber.

Falling oil prices have cut into the economics of recycling, officials said. Cheap oil means that new plastic can cost less than plastic created from recycled materials, and in many cases, people are not willing to pay a higher price for eco-friendly plastic. The Wall Street Journal reported last year.

The drop in profitability has caused counties and other local governments to scramble in the short run, but they all remain committed to maintaining — or increasing — recycling in the years to come.

With new facilities, new programs and new technologies on the horizon, the future of recycling looks bright, officials said.

"Recycling is the most popular program in the county," said Charleston

Please see RECYCLING, Page A5

Partly cloudy.
High 77. Low 61.
Complete 5-day
forecast, B8

Bridge B7 Crossword B6, C10
Business B1 Editorials A8 Sports C1
Classifieds C7 Movies B5 Sudoku B5
Comics B6,7 Obituaries B2 Television B4

Charleston Deals Today

Nuit Belge
$89 for one general session ticket to Nuit Belge 2016 ($106 value).
See A2

The State

GOING GREEN

Willett claims Masters title as Spieth stumbles 1-3B

ONLINE
AT THESTATE.COM
 See more photos and video from Augusta

Denny Willett walks off of the 18th hole after shooting a 67 during the final round of the Masters.

MATT WALSH mwalsh@thestate.com

MONDAY APRIL 11 2016

$1.00 VOL. 126TH, No. 54 STAY CONNECTED THESTATE.COM

FACEBOOK.COM/THETSTATENEWS
 TWITTER.COM/THETSTATE

TODAY: PARTLY CLOUDY HI 74 LO 59
 YESTERDAY: HI 62 LO 37 PRECIP. (w of 5 p.m.) 0"
 FORECAST, BC

PALMETTO VOICES
RETHINKING RESPONSIBILITY
 Arcadia Lakes Mayor argues that repairing the damage done by storm-water should be a community instead of an individual responsibility. 1C

LEXINGTON COUNTY

Fees on new development could pay for better roads

Idea emerges as push for penny tax vote wanes

BY TIM FLACH
tflach@thestate.com

It likely will be tough sell to county leaders

New road linking I-20 and I-26 also proposed

Lexington County officials are once again talking about levying impact fees on new development to help pay for road improvements.

The fees would be part of a package that also might include a proposal for a 10- to 12-mile toll road linking I-20 to the I-26/I-77 intersection near the Congaree River in Richland County - stretching across Red Bank to Dixiana - to route traffic away from Malfunction Junction.

It promises to be slow going for both ideas.

Renewed interest in fees comes after support for a second try this fall at voter approval of a penny sales tax increase for roads is fading. State money, too, seems unreachable.

"We've got to look at other

SEE FEES, 7A

EDUCATION
A DEBT-FREE COLLEGE EDUCATION?
 A proposal by S.C. Gov. Nikki Haley would allow teachers to graduate college debt-free if they agree to teach in one of the state's neediest rural districts. 3A

NIGHT OF JOY

From left, Curtis Bassfield, Rev. Betty Brown and Rev. Glora Newman sing during the Night of Joy gathering at Spirit Communications Park.

'This city has come together'

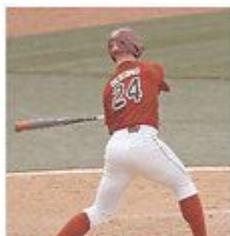

Gospel music powers Columbia Night of Joy

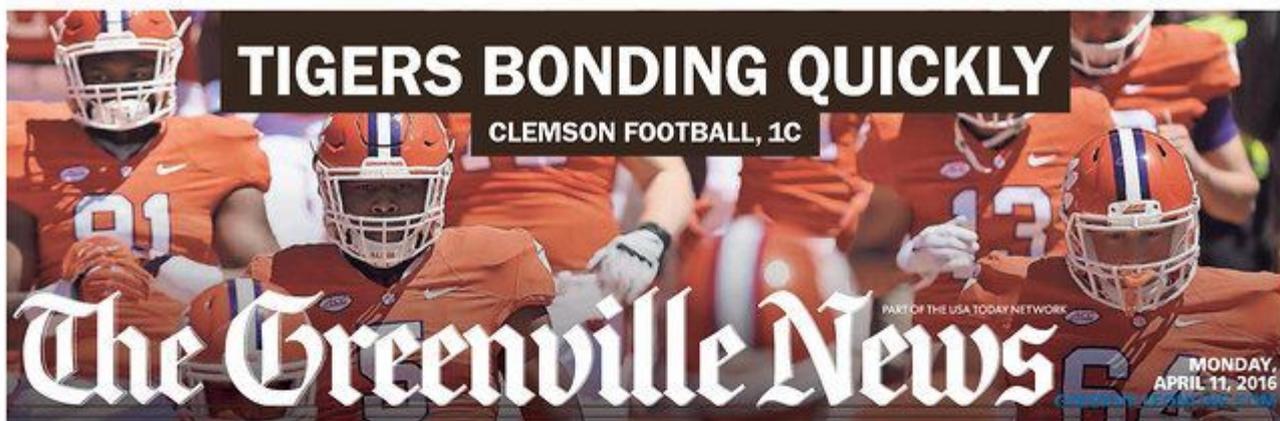

Shuttles give a lift at inaugural Fireflies stadium event

BY CASSIE COPE
ccope@thestate.com

about 10 trips transporting those who parked in the nearby lots an hour and a half before the event started.

Shuttles give a ride to 1...

USA TODAY EX-NFL PLAYER'S DEATH TURNS SPOTLIGHT ON ROAD RAGE PAGE 1B

Clinic fills void in opioid abuse treatment

ANNA LEE
ZLEE@GREENVILLENEWS.COM

Theresa Terry first heard about Suboxone from friends in recovery who said it curbed their opioid cravings.

Terry, 62, had gone through detox at the Phoenix Center in Greenville before but said she wanted get to a place where she could live without the pills.

"That was so many years of my life," she said.

So when Terry learned the Phoenix Center was opening a clinic to treat opioid addiction, she called to see if she could get on Suboxone. She was one of 17 people on a waiting list for treatment when the clinic opened last month. The facility is licensed to treat up to 300 patients.

With opioid use on the rise, expanding access to treatment is more important than ever.

"The opioid epidemic is one of the most pressing public health issues in the United States today," U.S. Department of Health and Human Services Secretary Sylvia Burwell said.

The agency last month announced $94 million in additional funding to expand treatment of opioid use disorders at 271 health centers in 45 states.

South Carolina received more than $1.1 million to support health centers in Florence, Orangeburg and Little River. The state ranked fourth-worst in the nation in how much funding it commits to fighting drug and alcohol abuse, according to an earlier analysis by The Greenville News.

Improving access to medication-assisted treatment, or MAT, will bolster nationwide efforts to curb opioid abuse and help save lives, Burwell said.

Overdoses from heroin and other opioids are killing more than 28,000 peo-

See CLINIC, Page 5A

ENGLISHMAN WINS MASTERS

Willett takes advantage of Spieth's collapse

Master champion Danny Willett of England waves after winning the tournament Sunday.

IAE C. HONG/AP

BOB BERGHAUS
BERGHAUS@CITIZEN-TIMES.COM

AUGUSTA, Ga. — Danny Willett

However, when many people look back at the 80th Masters, all they'll remember is this was the tournament Jordan Spieth won. Not the fact that Spieth's collapse around Amen Corner was brutal as he dropped into a tie for fourth at 1 under. But he battled back and almost pulled within a shot when he just Want to graduate college debt free? Teach in a rural area

SEANNA ADCOX
ASSOCIATED PRESS

COLUMBIA— The teacher shortage in poor, rural districts in South Carolina is so bad, the state is considering offering would-be instructors a way to graduate from college debt free.

The catch? They have to spend eight years in the state's neediest districts, where turnover is the worst and the closest Wal-Mart can be up to 45 minutes away. There's another, perhaps even bigger, hurdle with Gov. Nikki Haley's proposal: The state doesn't have enough teachers interested in its current $5 million loan-forgiveness program.

"We're in deep trouble," said Melanie Barton, director of South Carolina's Education Oversight Committee. "We used to go to Ohio and Pennsylvania a lot to get teachers. Now those states don't have surpluses."

The teacher shortage is nationwide. In South Carolina, colleges are graduating about 2,000 fewer teachers than needed. Many college students don't want to become teachers and the ones that do typically don't want to work in remote places. States are offering to wipe away college loans or increase salaries, but the incentives haven't enticed enough teachers.

In Indiana, the Legislature recently passed (March 22) the "Next Generation Hoosier Educators Scholarship," rewarding students who commit to teaching five years in any public school with up to $30,000 off their college tuition. But the program is limited to 200 students yearly who graduate in the top 20 percent of their high school class.

House Speaker Brian Bosma, a Republican who sponsored the measure, called the program an "innovative way to encourage high school students."

"In today's economy, we realize our top-performing students have many college and career options," he said.

California faces one of the nation's most severe teacher shortages: Enrollment in college education programs has dropped more than 70 percent over the last decade, according to the Learning Policy Institute, a state-

WILLETT'S THE MASTER NOW

FULL COVERAGE OF THE FINAL ROUND OF THE MASTERS IN SPORTS, 1B

INDEX-JOURNAL

VOL. 98, NO. 27

 indexjournal.com

2 SECTIONS, 18 PAGES

MONDAY, APRIL 11, 2016

DAILY 75¢, SUNDAY $1.50

■ SC EDUCATION

Filling a need

Teach in a rural area to graduate debt-free under Haley plan

By SEANNA ADCOX
Associated Press

COLUMBIA — The teacher shortage in poor, rural districts in South Carolina is so bad, the state is considering offering would-be instructors a way to graduate from college debt free.

The catch? They have to spend eight years in the state's neediest districts, where turnover is the worst and the closest Wal-Mart can be up to 45 minutes away. There's another, perhaps even bigger, hurdle with Gov. Nikki Haley's proposal: The state doesn't have enough teachers interested in its current $5 million loan-forgiveness program.

NIKKI HALEY

"We're in deep trouble," said Melanie Barton, director of South Carolina's Education Oversight Committee. "We used to go to Ohio and Pennsylvania a lot to get teachers. Now those states don't have surpluses."

The teacher shortage is nationwide. In South Carolina, colleges are graduating about 2,000 fewer teachers than needed. Many college students don't want to become teachers and the ones that do typically don't want to work in remote places. States are offering to wipe away college loans or increase salaries, but the incentives haven't enticed enough teachers.

In Indiana, the Legislature recently passed (March 22) the "Next Generation Hoosier Educators Scholarship," rewarding students who commit to teaching five years in any public school with up to $30,000 off their college tuition. But the program is limited to 200 students yearly who graduate in the top 20 percent of their high school class.

House Speaker Brian Bosma, a Republican who sponsored the measure, called the program an "innovative way to encourage high school students."

"In today's economy, we realize our top-performing students have many college and career options," he said.

See NFFD page 4A

The night shift

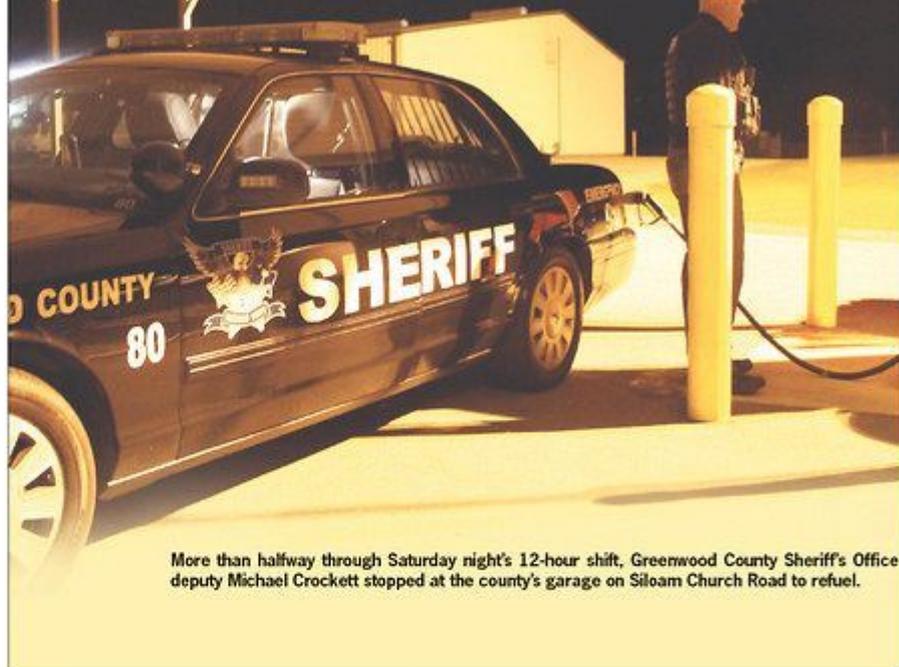

Ride-along with a deputy gives insights into how law enforcement works

Story and photos by DAMIAN DOMINGUEZ
ddominguez@indexjournal.com

While some people sit at a desk working a 9 to 5 job, others, like Michael Crockett, work a 12-hour shift from behind a steering wheel.

Deputy Crockett, 33, has been with the Greenwood County Sheriff's Office uniform patrol division for about six months. Since transferring from working with the Laurens County Sheriff's Office, he's been getting more familiar with the roads and highways in Greenwood. When his radio blares out a coded message requesting him to respond, he still sometimes needs to put the address into a GPS.

See NIGHT, page 4A

More than halfway through Saturday night's 12-hour shift, Greenwood County Sheriff's Office deputy Michael Crockett stopped at the county's garage on Siloam Church Road to refuel.

ACCLAIMED AUTHOR CLEARY TURNS 100

NATION, A5

WITH TEXAS WIN, MAGIC CONTINUES FOR BUSCH

SPORTS, B1

Herald-Journal

SPARTANBURG, SOUTH CAROLINA

Monday, April 11, 2016

GoUpstate.com

75¢

GoUpstate

@GoUpstate

TODAY TUE WED

70°/56° 66°/47° 64°/44°

Complete forecast, A10

NEWS DIGEST

Wreck results in two fatalities

Fatalities were reported Sunday in a two-vehicle accident that occurred last week. Spartanburg County Coroner Rusty Clevenger said Donnell Marquise Coleman, 43, of 503 Pinkney St., Union died Saturday morning at Spartanburg Medical Center and his mother, Jannie Coleman, 63, of 103 Morning Glory Drive, Union died Sunday morning at Spartanburg Medical Center from injuries they sustained in a two-vehicle accident which occurred at 4:55 p.m. Thursday at the intersection of Pine Street and Rushing Road.

According to the South Carolina Highway Patrol, Andre Coleman was driving a 2001 Ford SUV eastbound on Pine Street, or Highway 176. Donnell Coleman was a rear seat passenger in the vehicle while Jannie Coleman was a front seat passenger, according to Highway Patrol.

According to Highway Patrol, Coleman attempted to turn left from Pine Street crossing the westbound lane into a private drive. A woman driving a 2006 Chrysler van struck the side of Coleman's vehicle. Occupants in both vehicles were all wearing seatbelts, according to Highway Patrol. Coleman was cited for failure to yield right of way. The causes of death are currently pending forensic examination and toxicology results.

The Highway Patrol continues to investigate the collision. —From staff reports

LOCAL

Traffic calming

Spartanburg City Council will continue its discussion of possible changes to the city's traffic calming program during Monday evening's meeting. A6

ROLL POSITION

CAMPAIGN 2016

Candidates shift to delegate hunt

By Laurie Kellman and Lisa Lerer
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Democratic and Republican presidential hopefuls are coming to terms with the cold mathematical reality of chasing delegates ahead of their nominating conventions, with front-runners Hillary Clinton and Donald Trump driving for challenge-proof majorities against rivals who won't go away.

For Trump, who remains well short of the 1,237 delegates he needs to clinch the GOP nod, that means his campaign focuses on developing a delegate-centered strategy akin to the one that rival Ted Cruz has pursued for months.

"A more traditional approach is needed and Donald Trump recognizes that," Paul Manafort, Trump's new delegate chief, said Sunday on NBC's "Meet the Press."

Even so, the billionaire developer later in the day complained

Republican presidential hopeful Donald Trump speaks during a rally Sunday at JetSmart Aviation Services in Rochester, N.Y. MIKE GROLL/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SEE CAMPAIGN 2016, A9

THE MASTERS

Change of course

New father Willett takes advantage of Spieth woes to earn green jacket

By Eric Boynton
eric.boynton@shj.com

AUGUSTA, Ga. — Oh baby, what a finish to the Masters, with little-known Englishman Danny Willett completing a major life transformation over a 12-day span.

The 28-year-old provided the improbable encore to the March 30 birth of his first child by taking full advantage of a shocking Jordan Spieth final-nine collapse Sunday to emerge victorious at Augusta National. It was just Willett's second try for the green jacket.

He posted one of only two bogey-free rounds with a 5-under 67 over the pressure-packed finale to finish 5-under overall, two shots clear of Spieth and Lee Westwood.

"It's just crazy, just surreal," said Willett, who earned $1.8 million for first place. "You know, words can't really

SEE THE MASTERS, A6

Inside

GET $50 TODAY ON A SERVE® CARD AFTER WE FILE YOUR TAXES.

1-800-234-1040

Jackson Hewitt®
WHERE TAXES ARE LESS TAXING

Minimum tax prep fee required. Valid at participating locations. Terms and conditions apply. $50 provided on an American Express Serve® Card. No other promotion, coupons, or discount valid with Gift. Ask a Tax Pro or see JacksonHewitt.com for details. American Express Serve: Eligibility, fees and restrictions apply. See the Consumer User Agreement at serve.com/jacksonhewitt/legal for details. American Express Serve prepaid cards are issued by American Express Travel Related Services Company, Inc., 200 Vesey Street, New York, NY 10285. All trademarks are property of their respective owners.

Morning News

MONDAY APRIL 11, 2016

TODAY'S WEATHER

Sunshine, pleasant and warmer.
High 78, low 55.
DETAILS 2A

www.scnw.com

The Voice of the Pee Dee

75 cents

Big problem, solved

SHAMIRA MCCRAY/MORNING NEWS

Fitness World Gyms owner Curtis Boyd (left) watches as Ernie Williams uses a roller machine at the gym in Darlington.

Darlington man has lost more than 400 pounds; local gym owner has helped

BY SHAMIRA MCCRAY
Morning News
smccray@florencenews.com

DARLINGTON — At his heaviest, Ernie Williams said, he weighed 771 pounds. To the disbelief of doctors, the 36-year-old Darlington man was still mobile.

But on July 7, 2013, Williams said, he "fell out dead." As a result of his size, he slipped into a coma and was placed on life support. After some time, it was left up to his brother to make the decision on what to do next. Williams' trainer, Curtis Boyd, said the medical team was ready to pull the plugs and remove him from life support.

"He (Williams' brother) had to make the decision," Williams said. "He told them to wait one more day."

A four-month hospital stay is what it took for Williams to recover well enough to leave.

He received physical therapy for several months after his hospital release. Therapy

See WILLIAMS, Page 3A

CONTRIBUTED PHOTO

At his heaviest, Ernie Williams weighed 771 pounds.

City of Florence

Downtown farmers market changing

BY DEBORAH SWEARINGEN
Morning News
dswearingen@florencenews.com

FLORENCE — A new season will bring change for the downtown Florence farmers market, including a new name, new location and new day of the week.

The City Center Market, as it will now be called, opens April 23. It will be held every Saturday through the end of October in the back parking lot of the City Center Building, with the ultimate hope of making it a year-round, multiday market.

"I think the timing is important because there's getting ready to be a lot more residential life downtown," market organizer Jennie Pezè said. "The city officials have made it pretty clear that they believe that local foods are a vital part of a thriving city."

Ovis Hill previously held Thursday and Saturday markets at Naturally Outdoors. The Thursday market will continue at Naturally Outdoors, but Ovis Hill will join forces with the City Center Market and move its Saturday market there. The farm will be an anchor tenant at the weekly market.

"That will be a huge draw," Pezè said.

She said the move to Saturday should attract more people and more vendors. The market previously was held on Wednesday afternoons.

Plus, she said, the weather is less volatile in the mornings, and there will not be a problem with daylight regardless of the season.

And perhaps of most importance to shoppers and vendors will be the increase in available parking, Pezè said. There is parking in the City Center parking lot and behind it on West Cheves Street.

See MARKET, Page 3A

Each Monday, the Morning News features a good news story on a person, place or organization in the Pee Dee. If you have a suggestion for someone or something to profile, send it to news@scnw.com.

With 'Breathe,' man shares realities of life with cystic fibrosis

Brennen Reeves performs

BY DEBORAH SWEARINGEN
Morning News
dswearingen@florencenews.com

Brennen Reeves, the show's writer and sole actor, suggests,

The 24-year-old Hilton Head Island native was born with cystic fibrosis.

IF YOU GO

» WHAT: "Breathe"

STATE
Diamondback terrapin might be the key to marsh health 3A

NATION
Police working to regain trust one year after Freddie Gray death 9A

MONDAY APRIL 11 2016

75¢ VOLUME 46, No. 102
 STAY CONNECTED ISLANDPACKET.COM

FACEBOOK.COM/ISLANDPACKET
 TWITTER.COM/ISLANDPACKET

HILTON HEAD ISLAND
 BLUFFTON

Partly cloudy
 71°/65° Sec 2A

THE ISLAND PACKET

48TH RBC HERITAGE PRESENTED BY BOEING

PREPARING TO GET INTO FULL SWING

TODAY'S SCHEDULE

Morning: Practice rounds
11 a.m.: Opening ceremonies
11:30 a.m.: Pro-Am
 Presented by Boeing
Full schedule: 3B

Tyler Lindo, 17, a member of the Bluffton High School football team, places trash bags and recycling bins near the practice driving range on Sunday during some final preparations for the RBC Heritage at Harbour Town Golf Links in Sea Pines on Hilton Head.

A 20-YEAR TRADITION

The Christian Heritage Breakfast celebrates its 20th year this week. Five-time tour winner Ben Crane will be the speaker. 3A

True to plaid: Injury aside, Jim Furyk plans to hit Heritage opening shot today

Wrist surgery to keep last year's champion out of tournament, but he'll be part of opening ceremony

World No.1 Jason Day headlines the field to begin competition Thursday at Harbour Town

BY JEFF SHAIN
 jshain@islandpacket.com

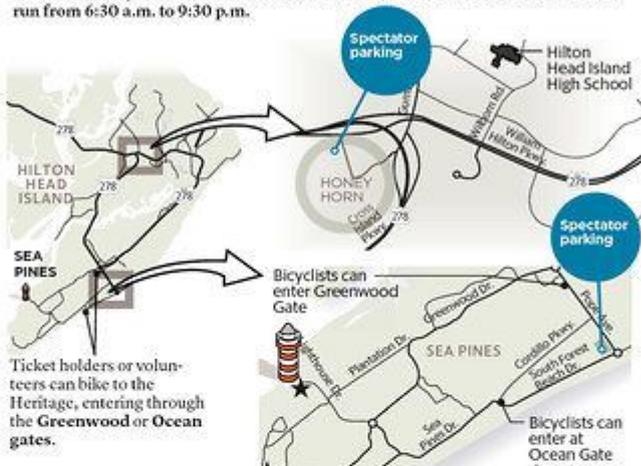

Though Jim Furyk may not yet be ready to go four rounds at the RBC Heritage, he's good for one shot.

And so the 48th edition of Heritage Week will open today in the same manner that tradition dictates — with last year's winner striking a drive into Calibogue Sound, accompanied by the blast of a cannon that signals the official start to Hilton Head Island's biggest sporting and social event.

Furyk will not play the tournament, as his surgically repaired left wrist still needs a few more weeks before it's ready for the rigors of

Places to park

Tournament spectators can park at Honey Horn or the Coligny Beach parking lot. From there, buses will shuttle them to Harbour Town in Sea Pines. Buses will run from 6:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m.

Ticket holders or volunteers can bike to the Heritage, entering through the Greenwood or Ocean gates.

THE WILL TO WIN THE MASTERS

Danny Willett wins the Masters by three strokes after Jordan Spieth loses a five-shot lead with a quadruple-bogey. 1B

WILLETT WINS

Englishman earns victory after Spieth's collapse

Kisner finishes on a high note

More Masters coverage
Sports, 1-2B

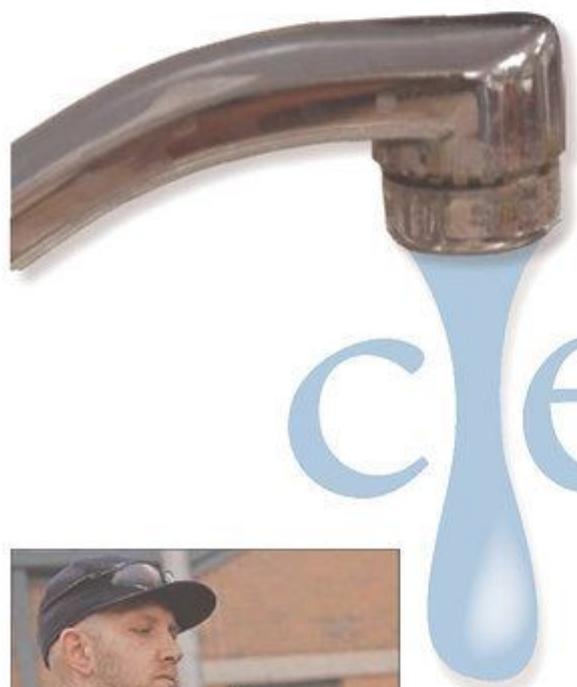

Aiken Standard

MONDAY, April 11, 2016

AIKENSTANDARD.COM

Vol. 150, No. 102 Aiken, S.C. ★★ 75¢

Aiken draws clean water

Black leaders to meet, discuss concerns

BY MAAYAN SCHECHTER
mschechter@aikenstandard.com

Black community members will meet Monday to discuss law enforcement concerns and issues in the Aiken community at roughly the same time that Aiken City Council members will gather to hold their regularly scheduled meeting.

The 6 p.m. town hall will be open to the public at the Smith Hazel Recreation Center, 400 Kershaw Street. A press release states the town hall meeting is sponsored by the Concerned Ministers Fellowship of Aiken, the NAACP of Aiken County, Black Lives Matter and the African American Leadership Council so as to "inform our community about what we have learned, what we have heard and to develop together a path forward."

The Rev. Paul Bush, who is listed as the main contact on the news release, did not return comment by press time.

Aiken County residents Elijah Pontoon and Lakeya Hicks are suing in federal court the Aiken Department of Public Safety, its Chief Charles Barranco, four Aiken police officers and the City in Aiken over what they say was an unconstitutional search by police on Oct. 2, 2014.

The suit also says officer Chris Medlin and former officer Clark Smith unconstitutionally performed a public cavity search of Pontoon in broad daylight after Hicks' vehicle

BY CHRISTINA CLEVELAND
ccleveland@aikenstandard.com

Aiken County drinking water has not exceeded the regulated lead action level in the past five years, according to the South Carolina Department of Health and Environmental Control.

The question of tap water quality in American cities has become more frequent following the water crisis in Flint, Michigan. Images of Flint residents holding brown water in plastic water bottles in front of city leaders and news reports of children poisoned by lead have gained nationwide attention this year.

The city has suffered unsafe amounts of lead in its water for two years. Flint switched from Detroit drinking water to the Flint River Water in April 2014. Highly corrosive river water went through the city's pipes, leaching lead into the city's water supply, CNN reported.

In a series called "Tainted at the Tap" the Associated Press conducted an analysis of U.S. Environmental Protection Agency data and found that roughly 1,400 water systems across the country reported a sample above the EPA lead limit over the past three years.

This month, residents of two York County neighborhoods expressed concern after testing found the amount of lead in their drinking water exceeded federal standards, a separate AP story reported.

None of the water systems in Aiken named on DHEC's lead data sheet have exceeded the action level for lead, which is greater than 15 parts per billion or .015.

The data shows lead detection in public water systems from 2011 to 2015 and names

RACHEL WOOD/THE FLINT JOURNAL, ALIVE.COM VIA AP
Matthew Campbell of Flint, Michigan, moves bottled

Camlin Moore

Cell: 803-206-8236

Office: 803-734-8044