

Account: South Carolina State Parks

Content type: Facebook Page - Timeline posts

Record ID: 20190312South-Carolina-State-ParksTimeline-posts52748_10157210498013166

South Carolina State Parks

at 12:00:01 on 3/12/2019 UTC · 🌐

March Marks Mayapple Season! Early in March, Podophyllum peltatum begin to pop up at Oconee Station State Historic Site. Also known as Mayapple, this plant is known for its white flower which grows between two umbrella-like leaves. Mayapples form dense mats on the forest floor by late March-early April, then bloom a few weeks later. The flower is around for only about two weeks, so bring some luck and bring a camera to capture this beautiful flower.

<https://southcarolinaparks.com/oconee-station>

Laura Norris Daniel Ann W-Fitz here's what the Mayapple flower looks like. we saw these plants on the riverwalk yesterday.

at 14:41:02 on 3/12/2019 UTC

Ann W-Fitz LOL...I was just going to share this with you. We never did get off our bikes to look at them

at 15:09:55 on 3/12/2019 UTC

Esther Brock Byrd Are they also called "may pops"?

at 20:57:21 on 3/19/2019 UTC