Here's the front cover, and then the interior for the back cover. We'll plug in the actual dollar amounts for the interior cover once we know how many pages we'll have and what the bids will be. It gives them something to work with in the meantime. Let me know when the proof for the front cover will be ready, when you get a chance. Sounds like early next week.

Also, I remember thinking that we had to return the proof cover last year. If that's the way it works, that's fine, but we'll need to buy a separate copy of just that front cover, then, and we'll need it in advance of the books themselves. I can explain tomorrow. We'd need that cover by Friday, December 14th. Budget Day is Wednesday, December 19th, but we're only going to publish the PDF online that day. We likely won't give the final document to the printers until 12/19, but we don't need to receive the printed versions from them until 1/2 or 1/3, so that the relevant officials can receive them on the first day of session, the following week. Thanks.
