Subject: The 5 questions to ask when evaluating government tech

Hi Tony,

If you're like most public officials I talk to, you are seemingly in a constant state of decision-making when it comes to replacing processes and systems used to carry out "the business of government."

To help, I wanted to pass along this new tip sheet from Granicus, which outlines the five most important questions you should ask as you evaluate new tools and software for your organization.

Take care!
