Updates on smart city progress around the globe

NEWS & TRENDS

Data mistakes cities can't risk: There's no question cities can use data to make people's lives easier, but without privacy safeguards, people are finding those services more creepy than useful. Experts say unless cities address this now, key initiatives could fail. MORE >>

Greener, leaner port operations: Ports are economic engines for many cities. They're also extremely complex operations -- so complex that even a tiny glitch can shut them down. Learn how Siemens is providing smart technologies to help ports stay on top of their game. MORE >>

City solar success stories: More businesses and homeowners are generating solar energy. But tight budgets and unfavorable tax policies often hold cities back. It doesn't have to be that way. Learn how cities are overcoming obstacles, with help from companies like S&C Electric, to save money and the environment. MORE >>

The case for smart water (and why it's a no brainer)
