Angela Tennant Adams Poinsett is in the middle of nowhere and not much to do, but it is BEAUTIFUL, the rangers and volunteers there are extremely nice and helpful, and it has to be one of the cleanest state parks I've ever been to. Calhoun Falls- we went late September and the lake is beautiful, but the infrastructure is in horrible repair, the staff wasn't rude, but they weren't too friendly either. The site wasn't clean when we got there and the bathrooms were dirty too. It looked like all the camp host did the whole time was replace toilet tissue and ride around in his jeep. BUT it's on our list to try again in the summer time when we can also enjoy the lake.

Santee SP is the closest to my parent's house and we go there often. Stay in the loop that is far back in the woods. It's nice, almost always clean, but the rangers are absolute assholes and have been so every time we have gone. I've been told they are even more horrible to the campers in the newly renovated loop.
