About the Artist

Mary Edna Fraser is a master dyer who teaches the art of batik across the United States and around the world. She specializes in the aerial perspective featuring large scale art for architectural commissions. Works are carefully researched and she often hikes the terrain, explores by boat or flies above in a vintage plane while photographing the landscape. For this project, she explored Saluda Shoals Park and walked along the Riverfront trail to become familiar with the uniqueness of the Saluda River.
