Subject: RE: Bill SC H3492 will kill animal shelters

Thanks – we’ve kept an eye on this bill this week, and ultimately, it wasn’t brought up in committee. Since the bill is still in its originating house, it’s unlikely to move this year. If a bill isn’t passed by its originating house by May 1st, then it takes a supermajority for it to advance during that session.

We’re also keeping an eye on S. 193 and S. 293, which also relate to animal issues. Both of those have now passed in the Senate, so they’re more likely to keep moving this session. If you have a take on either of those, just let us know. Thanks again.

Christian:

We met at the Hilton Head Brunch for Governor Haley, and discussed the proposed legislation brought up by the SC Veterinarians.

I have attached a recent article that covers some of the concerns of Animal Shelters. My personal opinion is that Private Practice

Vets, and those employed by Animal Shelters should follow the same rules and have the same rights. It is my understanding that the vote could come as early as tomorrow. The Governors support is appreciated.
