Dear Ms. Adams:

I am contacting you from Kyodo News, which is Japan's largest new wire service, with over 30 million subscribers worldwide and publications in Japanese, English, Chinese and Korean, to request an interview with Governor Haley, who has been selected as the next U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations.

As a prominent voice in Asia and beyond, and in covering the United Nations extensively, I would appreciate having the opportunity to present her viewpoints and experiences to our Japanese and other global readers at her earliest convenience a feature article we would like to publish.

Specifically, we would like to ask the Governor about the views and insights she brings to the post as the third U.S. Ambassador in a row who is a woman and will hold a cabinet level position.

Given her expertise as the Governor of a large American state that has grappled with numerous issues, we would like to hear how she intends to bring her experiences to the forefront of multilateral diplomacy at the U.N.

Although based in New York, we would be willing to travel to any location that would be convenient for her.

We thank you in advance for your consideration and cooperation and look forward to hearing back from you shortly.

Sincerely,

Ryohei Takagi

U.N. Correspondent
