I have always felt blessed to have the support of my family. This past year was like no other. Michael has always been my most trusted advisor. This year that was even more so. He supported me through the grief, the decision making, and the prayers as we moved forward through South Carolina's tragedies. An elected official is only as strong as the strength she has at home. I'm thankful my strength is my husband. Please help me welcome our First Man for being my strength, my partner, and the coolest First Man of South Carolina, Michael Haley

It is hard to believe how much my little ones have grown. They have had to spend so much of their lives in the public eye. It is not easy to be the children of a Governor. But these two handle it in a way that makes us so proud. This is Rena's last year at home with us, which breaks my heart and Nalin is finishing his last year in Middle School. Please help me welcome my pride and joy, Rena and Nalin.
