

State of South Carolina

Proclamation

by Governor Jim Hodges

- WHEREAS, much of South Carolina's rich and diverse heritage is contained in the documents and records created and for its people; and
- WHEREAS, state and local governments, religious and medical institutions, colleges and universities, libraries, historical societies, museums, businesses, and families throughout the Palmetto State have established archives as a means of preserving our written history; and
- WHEREAS, these archives collectively contain over three hundred years of unique materials ranging from hand-written letters and diaries to typewritten manuscripts to photographs, videotapes, and modern electronic data systems; and
- WHEREAS, archivists and manuscript curators across the Palmetto State are dedicated to responsibly preserving the historical word, maintaining records in the public trust, and making those records available for study and appreciation, whether in a local repository or via the Internet; and
- WHEREAS, through these archives, future generations of South Carolinians can more accurately study the past, learn from the accomplishments of their predecessors, trace their ancestors, understand their community's pride of place, confirm property rights, and maintain laws, while celebrating the history of our state.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Jim Hodges, Governor of the Great State of South Carolina, do hereby proclaim October 6 – 12, 2002, as throughout the state and encourage all South Carolinians to discover the rich treasures contained in local archival repositories across the Palmetto State.
