Subject: OFII e-News on foreign investment in the United States

December 6, 2013

Earlier this week, I led a panel discussion on “Global Investment in American Manufacturing” at the 2013 Reinvesting in American Manufacturing conference in Houston. Joining me were some fantastic representatives from Tata Beverages, BASF, and Samsung. The conference showcased the stellar contributions insourcing manufacturers make to the U.S. economy – creating over 2 million jobs and accounting for 50 percent of all global investment in the U.S.

To kick off the conference, I wrote an op-ed for the Houston Chronicle on the positive impact insourcing manufactures are having on Texas’ economy. I also spoke with the Houston Business Journal about the challenges global companies face when investing in the U.S. and how we can make the United States a more attractive location for FDI. KUHF-FM also featured these themes in their coverage of the conference. Overall, a successful week for insourcers and manufacturing.
