South Carolina State Parks WOW! We have some really smart state park fans! That's why we love you. It is indeed an icy willow tree at Oconee State Park during a recent ice storm. Good job Ken Satterfield, and great guesses everyone else.

at 21:12:11 on 2/11/2010 UTC

Billie Mck Ice from sleet I think!

at 22:22:21 on 2/11/2010 UTC

Wanda Joy Cain So beautiful...thanks for sharing...down here on the coast we don't get to see ice or snow that much at all!
Love all the picture of the State Parks you post...THANKS!

Mark McMillen Looks like a couple inches of global warming on that tree.

at 0:28:00 on 2/12/2010 UTC

Michelle Blanton Bourguignon ice covered branches!

at 1:21:41 on 2/12/2010 UTC

Leanne Raines Fishburne ditto to the global warmingv- or is the cooling (snow) masking the warming? I'm so confused!!!!

at 2:07:53 on 2/12/2010 UTC

Teah Wade whatever it is it's covered with ice! Beautiful shot!

at 5:26:42 on 2/12/2010 UTC

Judy Cannon Goff My guess would have been ornamental grass - like fountain grass - covered in ice. Ken is good!

at 12:24:02 on 2/12/2010 UTC

Cookie Proveaux I like the frozen Kudzu answer, if it is not right it is a great guess

at 16:52:21 on 2/12/2010 UTC

Dallas Gillespie Shirley It's ice on the trees at Oconee???
