CLEVELAND (AP) — It's Donald Trump's big moment to make his case to the country — and to the many rattled own party. The most important speech of his presidential campaign will bring down the balloons on a convention divided loyalties and unwanted distractions as well as full-throated roars against Democratic rival Hillary Clinton.

CLEVELAND (AP) — Texas Sen. Ted Cruz tried to link arms with Republicans at the party's national convention lustily by delegates when he ended his speech without offering Donald Trump his endorsement — or even saying for the New York billionaire. Cruz was booed lustily by delegates as he concluded his talk.
