Today, much of the state is under a Wind Advisory or High Wind Warning, causing several thousand power outages, especially in the Upstate. In the Midlands, many folks are under a Tornado Watch as well, meaning that conditions are favorable for a tornado to occur. If you see a funnel cloud or dark clouds with large hail, take cover immediately – back away from windows and go to an interior room. Much of the ground in South Carolina is still saturated from the October Floods, so be on the lookout for isolated flooding as well.
