Subject: I always had reasons to fear

Amazon, Sedgwick and SC Worker's Comp:

I have not correspond in a week due to so much going on. I recently had to deal with the deaths of two family members which did not help my situation. I am still dealing with the headaches, leg/feet pain, back pain, banging sounds in head, chest pain, paralysis in hands, neck and shoulder pain and leg weakness. I find myself attempting to fall over therefore loosing balance when bending down picking things up and memory lapse.

I received some disturbing news on yesterday(3/7/2016) from my doctor regarding my hernia. I remember the examining doctor stating it was large but just brush it off because he provided no specifics. I saw my doctor on yesterday and she stated that my hernia is the biggest on record. The doctor stated that it had to be chemically induce (poisoned) which was mind blowing. The blood work was normal from recent test performed. I was questioned about my alcohol intake which is none to non existence, eating habits and activities. I informed my doctor that my childhood was normal with no prior indication of a problem.

I do not know who, what or when. I do know that Amazon and Sedgwick and maybe even SC Worker's Comp had me trailed which was made known to all. I do know people have been sitting down from my house, seeing same vehicles riding up and down my road when coming out my house, claims of hearing people outside my house and even seen a light color tent across a field from my house many times which my sister recently asked me about on last week which all have been informed. Do know the emotions that went through me when she stated that my hernia being such a large size was chemically induce (poisoned). I have always become more fearful with this process as time has progress.
