Grant,
Marcia Adams asked that I forward you this report that details the results for the first year of implementation for the South Carolina Automated Liability Insurance Reporting system. This report was released to the legislature and to the insurance media last year.

As Marcia indicated to you on the phone, this program, while efficient and effective in identifying uninsured motorists, is not necessarily popular.

Because of our detection methods, we are finding uninsured motorists who must pay pretty substantial fines (up to $400 per vehicle) if they have any lapse in coverage.

We also have had cases where through no fault of their own (insurer sent a cancellation in error) people who have not cancelled their insurance but merely moved to another company are sent suspension notices when they shouldn't receive one.

Please let me know if you should have any additional questions.
