

From: Symmes, Brian
To:
Date: 12/6/2013 10:20:18 AM
Subject: SC Front Pages - Monday, December 6, 2013

SC Front Pages – Monday, December 6, 2013

Herald-Journal

FRIDAY

DECEMBER 6, 2013

SPARTANBURG, S.C.

50 cents

www.GoUpstate.com

HJ
IN A HURRY

5 Things to read today

Haley wins award

Gov. Nikki Haley was recognized as one of two recipients of the Roger Milliken Defender of Manufacturing Award at the South Carolina Manufacturers Alliance awards dinner Thursday night. Jerry Beasley, the former executive vice president of the S.C. Textile Association, was the other recipient. He died on Oct. 1, and the award was accepted by his wife, Ann. PAGE C1

Fast-food protests

Fast-food workers and labor organizers marched, waved signs and chanted in cities across the country on Thursday in a push for higher wages. By late afternoon, it was unclear what the actual turnout was or how many of the participants were workers. PAGE A3

Budget battle

With hopes of a "grand bargain" gone, congressional negotiators now are seeking a more modest deal before year-end to ease the automatic spending cuts that are squeezing both the Pentagon and domestic federal programs. PAGE A5

Doctors honored

For the first time in the 70-year history of the award, the Spartanburg Kiwanis Club extended its top honor to two recipients for their collaborative work in cancer research. On Thursday, the club named Drs. James Bearden and Julian Josey as "Citizens of the Year." PAGE C1

Doubling in size

An industrial coatings company with global ties will expand its footprint in Spartanburg County. Trimit Powders Inc. said Thursday it will invest $3.7 million to double its existing facility. PAGE C4

Weather

Economy surges into holiday season

Experts: Jobs report may test momentum

By JOSH BOAK

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The U.S. economy is growing faster, corporate profits are rising and companies are laying off the fewest workers in six years.

The latest government reports point to economic momentum in the midst of the critical holiday shopping season.

"The momentum looks strong," said Chris Rupkey, chief economist at the Bank of Tokyo-Mitsubishi.

Encouraging as the latest figures are, hopes for a robust finish to 2013 hinge on strong hiring. And that depends, in part, on what the government's November jobs report shows when it is released today.

The recovery from the recession that ended 4½ years ago has come in fits and starts. Unemployment remains high at 7.3 percent. And growth has yet to reach the acceleration that defined U.S. economic recoveries for much of the past half century.

Even Thursday's government report that the economy grew at a robust annual rate of 3.6 percent from July through September was hardly cause for celebration.

Nearly half the growth came from businesses building up their stockpiles, a temporary factor. Excluding stockpiling, annual growth last quarter was a mere 1.9 percent.

Unless consumers step up spending during the holiday season, stockpiling is likely to slow.

Most economists foresee a sharp slowdown in growth during the October-December quarter as businesses do less stockpiling. Early estimates for economic growth are at or below an annual rate of 1.5 percent.

Paul Ashworth, chief U.S. economist at Capital Economics, cautioned that a drop in fourth-quarter growth might not necessarily signal a weakening economy. Ashworth noted that the report on third-quarter growth showed that business sales surged, corporate profits rose, income grew and Americans saved more.

NELSON MANDELA: 1918-2013

Death of a freedom fighter

DENIS FARRELL/AP FILE

Former South African President Nelson Mandela is shown in Johannesburg in 2005. The iconic leader has died at 95 after a lengthy illness.

Former leader of South Africa stood up to apartheid, mourned by millions worldwide

By MARCUS ELIASON

The Associated Press

Nelson Mandela was a master of forgiveness. South Africa's first black president spent nearly a third of his life as a prisoner of apartheid, yet he sought to win over its defeated guardians in a relatively peaceful transition of power that inspired the world.

As head of state, the former boxer, lawyer and inmate lunched with the prosecutor who argued successfully for his incarceration. He sang the apartheid-era Afrikaans anthem at his inauguration and traveled hundreds of miles to have tea with the widow of the prime minister in power at the time he was sent to prison.

It was this generosity of spirit that made Mandela's stature as a fighter against apartheid — the system of white racist rule he called evil — and a seeker of peace with his enemies was on a par with that of other men he admired: American civil rights activist Martin Luther King Jr. and Indian independence leader Mohandas K. Gandhi, both of whom were assassinated while engaged in their callings.

Mandela's death deprived the world of one of the great figures of modern history and set the stage for days of mourning and reflection about a colossus of the 20th century who projected astonishing grace, resolve and good humor.

Dressed in black, South African President Jacob Zuma made the announcement on television. He said Mandela died "peacefully," surrounded by family, about 8:50 p.m.

"We've lost our greatest son. Our nation has lost an encounter in Atlanta inspired Upstaters

By LINDA CONLEY

linda.conley@shj.com

On a hot summer day 23 years ago, some Spartanburg residents traveled three hours on a bus to have an experience that comes along once in a lifetime.

Cindy Ball and James "Butch" Greer were among 27 people who took a one-day trip to Atlanta to see South African anti-apartheid icon Nelson Mandela. At the time of the June 27, 1990, event, Mandela was in the middle of a 12-day, eight-city U.S. tour. Four months earlier, Mandela had been released from prison after serving 27 years for fighting against racial segregation in his country.

Mandela, who had been in fragile health for the past several years, died Thursday at age 95.

"I was so impressed with him because he talked about the accomplishments of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., like his accomplishments didn't measure up to King's," Greer said. "He is one of those people you never want to see go away. Definitely, he is one of the world's greatest leaders of all time, especially for the people of Africa."

The local group left Spartanburg early in the morning because no one wanted to miss the chance to see Mandela. His appearance in Bobby Dodd Stadium on the campus of Georgia Tech wasn't scheduled until the afternoon.

Ball and Greer joined thousands of people crowded into the 50,000-seat stadium waiting for Mandela. They said it was one

Aiken Standard

YOUR LOCAL NEWS SOURCE SINCE 1867

FRIDAY, December 6, 2013

AIKENSTANDARD.COM

Vol. 147, No. 340 Aiken, S.C. ★★ 75¢

Haley: SRS needs proper funding

BY DERREK ASBERRY
dasberry@aikenstandard.com

Gov. Nikki Haley said she made it clear to Department of Energy Secretary Ernest Moniz that the 37 million gallons of waste at the Savannah River Site has to be taken care of. Haley spoke with the secretary in a face-to-face meeting in Washington, D.C., this week.

After the meeting, Haley spoke about her visit in a phone interview with the Aiken Standard. Haley said Moniz appears to be equally concerned with the SRS budget shortfall. Currently, environmental operations at the Site are financed by a $318 million continuing resolution; SRS requested $1.2 billion for the fiscal year.

"He made it very clear that in this next budget, he's working to push SRS waste cleanup and will do what it will take to get things back to their proper place at SRS," Haley told the Standard. "He is very well engaged in the Site and realizes the value of it."

Haley also shared the DOE secretary's views on the MOX facility. According to Haley, Moniz admitted that generating funding for the MOX facility is more difficult than (Energy Secretary Ernest Moniz is) working to push SRS waste cleanup and will do what it will take to get things back to their proper place at SRS.

S.C. Gov. Nikki Haley

other projects at the Site.

"We also spoke about the MOX facility, and that issue seems to be a little more difficult. He's concerned about the movement of it, but is working to find answers," Haley said.

Other topics the two discussed included the potential use of small modular reactors – or SMRs.

The reactors have an electricity output of less than 300 megawatts and are touted by supporters as a way to allow for less on-site construction and a way to increase economic efficiency.

SRS has recently been vying for a grant to bring SMRs to South Carolina. Haley, several other legislators and SRS representatives have all vocalized their support of SMRs.

Please see SRS, Page 16A

Aiken Standard publisher Hunter honored for service

STAFF PHOTO BY AMY BANTON

Aiken Standard Publisher Scott Hunter was presented with the Order of the Silver Crescent on Thursday evening. Pictured, from left, are S.C. Reps. Bill Clyburn, Don Wells and Roland Smith and Publisher Scott Hunter.

Hunter humbly receives Order of the Silver Crescent

BY AMY BANTON
abanton@aikenstandard.com

Aiken Communications President Scott Hunter is known as a modest man by many, but he was the center of attention on Thursday evening after receiving one of the state's top honors.

S.C. Reps. Bill Clyburn, Don Wells and Roland Smith presented Hunter with the Order of the Silver Crescent during his retirement celebration held at the Aiken Standard office.

The award is given to honor South Carolina residents for outstanding contributions and achievements within their community. It's the state's highest award for volunteer work or community service, according to Gov. Nikki Haley's website.

Hunter is the longest-serving daily newspaper publisher in the history of the state and will retire at the end of this year.

"Scott is very deserving, and he has offered a wonderful service to the people of Aiken, as well as the state," said

Aiken Standard Publisher Scott Hunter with his daughter Eleanor during his retirement celebration held on Thursday night.

Haley in a phone interview Thursday afternoon. "We're proud of him, and we as a state are happy to present him with the Order of the Silver Crescent."

A native of Maryland, Hunter is a graduate of the University of South Carolina and the University of North Carolina.

Hunter's career with the Aiken Standard began in 1973 as a sports writer. He later served as sports editor, news editor, managing editor and general manager before he was named Aiken Standard publisher and president of Aiken Communications in April of 1989.

ONLINE
For event photo gallery, visit www.aikenstandard.com

"This is all very humbling," Hunter said on Thursday evening. "I've had a wonderful career, but it was with the help of many people who were here tonight. I'm just very blessed."

Hunter was surrounded by family, friends, community leaders, corporate officials and his employees as they celebrated his 40-year career.

Retired Aiken Standard Editor Jeff Wallace, who helped gather letters from the community to support the award application for the Order of the Silver Crescent, said that he's had the pleasure of having Hunter as a boss as well as a friend.

Hunter was surrounded by family, friends, community leaders, corporate officials and his employees as they celebrated his 40-year career.

Please see HUNTER, Page 5A

Mandela: Mourned around the world

ASSOCIATED PRESS

The death of Nelson Mandela, South Africa's first black president who fought apartheid both as a prisoner of that system of white rule, and later as a political leader, drew an outpouring of messages from around the globe. Here are some of the reactions:

Former U.S. President Jimmy Carter, who fought for human rights advances around the globe during his administration, said he and wife Rosalynn were saddened. Carter had worked closely with the former South African president as part of a group of world leaders formed by Mandela in 2007.

"The people of South Africa and human rights advocates around the world have lost a great leader. His passion for freedom and justice created new hope for generations of oppressed people worldwide, and because of him, South Africa is today one of the world's leading democracies," Carter said in a statement released by the Atlanta-based Carter Center.

In Washington, the first African-American president of the United States, Barack Obama, declared that the world has lost an influential, courageous and "profoundly good" man with the death of the anti-apartheid icon.

Please see MANDELA, Page 5A

AP PHOTO/JUDA NGwenya, FILE
Nelson Mandela, South Africa's first president, passed away on Thursday.

AREA DEATHS

Beverly Murray Cooper, Aiken
James Arthur Fannings, Aiken
Deaths and Funerals, 6A

WEATHER

Hitchcock Parkway plans criticized, commended

BY MAAYAN SCHECHTER
mschecter@aikenstandard.com

Price remains a sticking point with critics of plans to widen Hitchcock Parkway, but no one seems to want their tail design presentations, tracing their finger over the gold line, rather than the yellow line, to figure where the new right-of-way would lie. Representatives of both S.C. Department of Transportation and its construction firm emphasized therian Church.

A concern remains over the price tag of the project, which Pixie Baxter said was one of her main issues with the widening plan.

"I think it will deplete the downing this particular corridor. For me, though, it's the aesthetic and ambience that is Aiken."

Resident John Kirkman said the City could easily kill a $40 million project that would take four years to construct

E GREENVILLE

WEEKEND EVENTS TO GET YOU IN THE HOLIDAY SPIRIT

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 6, 2013 | GREENVILLEONLINE.COM

The Greenville News

NATION

Spike in measles cases blamed on people not getting vaccinated, 2A

FINAL EDITION

A GANNETT COMPANY

NELSON MANDELA

1918 – 2013

SOUTH AFRICA'S 'POLITICAL SAINT'

Nelson Mandela arrives for the funeral of his great-granddaughter Zenani Mandela on June 17, 2010, in Sandton, South Africa. Mandela died Thursday at age 95. SPHINX/SIBEX/GETTY IMAGES

By William M. Welch USA Today

Nelson Mandela, whose successful struggle against South Africa's apartheid system of racial segregation and discrimination made him a global symbol for the cause of human rights and earned him the Nobel Prize, died Thursday. He was 95.

Mandela spent 27 years in South African prisons before his release in 1990. He negotiated with the nation's white leaders toward establishing democracy and was elected South Africa's first black president in 1994, serving one term.

"He probably will be remembered both inside and outside South Africa as a political saint," said Michael Parks, the former editor of the Los Angeles Times who won a Pulitzer Prize in 1987 for his coverage of Mandela and South Africa's struggles.

"He had flaws that he had to overcome. He had a temper

See MANDELA, Page 3A

“

I learned that courage was not the absence of fear, but the triumph over it. The brave man is not he who does not feel afraid, but he who conquers that fear.

NELSON MANDELA

Demand for food aid rises

Agencies fear more SNAP cuts will increase need

By Ron Barnett

Staff writer

rbarnett@greenvilleonline.com

On a dreary, drizzly late November morning, a steady stream of cars is turning off White Horse Road into the parking lot of Harvest Hope Food Bank.

It's so busy that a volunteer is directing traffic. From the opposite direction, people are pushing grocery carts filled with food to feed their families for a few days.

Officials of Harvest Hope, which distributes food to more than 100 relief agencies in the Upstate, decided they needed to open this emergency pantry at their Upstate headquarters because of a growing need in the Westside community.

Federal funding for the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP), commonly called food

See SNAP, Page 3A

Jessi Blake, community development and events coordinator at Harvest Hope, says the agency saw 800 families on the first day its emergency food bank opened. MYKAL MCEDOWNEY/STAFF

I-526 work gets OK to proceed

Harrell voices support; critics say it isn't needed

By Tim Smith

Staff writer

timsmith@greenvilleonline.com

COLUMBIA — The state's highway commission is moving forward with an agreement with Charleston County to begin the construction of a $558 million extension of Interstate 526, after House Speaker Bobby Harrell voiced his support of the project to the board.

The redesigned
Ford Mustang
debuts as iconic
car turns 50, B4

The State
FRIDAY, DECEMBER 6, 2013 | THESTATE.COM

Spurrier likes the land of Cotton

But Capital One Bowl would be nice too, C1

LAST CALL: THE X-RATED TABOO ADULT SHOP IS CLOSING. METRO

MIDLANDS' FOOTBALL DROUGHT ENDING

Dutch Fork or Sumter will be the first area school to win the 4A title since 1990

WEEKEND OF CHAMPIONS

By CHRIS DEARING
Special to The State

FRIDAY'S GAMES
At Benedict
Class 2A, Div. II:
Batesburg-Leesville vs.
Silver Bluff,
5:30 p.m.

Class 2A, Div. I:
Fairfield-Central vs.
Dillon, 8:30 p.m.

SATURDAY'S GAMES
At Williams-Brice Stadium

Class 4A, Div. II:
Stratford vs.
Northwestern,
noon

Class 3A: Daniel vs.
Myrtle Beach, 3 p.m.

Class 4A, Div. I:
Dutch Fork vs.
Sumter, 6 p.m.

INSIDE
Dutch Fork coach Tom Knotts has a history of winning. C1.

When the closing seconds of the 2013 high school football season are ticking off the Williams-Brice Stadium clock Saturday night, one thing will be certain — Dutch Fork or Sumter will end one of the longest droughts in Midlands football history.

Sumter is the last team from the area to claim a Class 4A, Division I state championship in football, winning in 1990 against Rock Hill.

Since then, it's been tough sledding for Midlands programs. Upstate powers such as Byrnes, Gaffney, Spartanburg, Dorman and Rock Hill routinely have won titles in the state's highest classification.

But with Fairfield Central and Batesburg-Leesville also playing for state titles during the Weekend of Championships starting Friday, the Midlands might be closing the gap on the rest of the state.

"When I got here, (former Lexington coach) Scott Earley said Midlands football was soft," Dutch Fork coach Tom Knotts said. "I didn't really see that. I saw some good football teams that always got bad draws when it came to the playoffs and were eliminated."

SEE DROUGHT PAGE A8

dealsaver™

TODAY'S DEAL

VILLAGE AT SANDHILL

One-third of land likely to be auctioned for taxes

By RODDIE BURRIS
rburris@thestate.com

A third of the sprawling Village at Sandhill on Clemson Road in Northeast Richland will go up for auction next week, unless more than $500,000 in back taxes is paid Friday.

The 2012 taxes are owed on two pieces of vacant land behind the Super Bi-Lo, according to court records.

Unless a guaranteed form of payment for the tax balances is made by 5 p.m., the properties are destined for the public auction block Monday or Tuesday, county officials said.

The auction is another blow to Columbia developer Alan Kahn, a major southeastern shopping center developer who has said he considered the 300-acre lifestyle center — with shops, restaurants and condos — to be his

SEE AUCTION PAGE A7

NELSON MANDELA, 1918-2013

FILE PHOTOGRAPH/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Nelson Mandela, in 2005, in a jovial mood at the Mandela Foundation in South Africa

Prisoner to president, he healed his country

Rowing across ocean the voyage of a lifetime

MOXIE, D1

S.C.'s small farms may cure some economic ills

SOUTH, B1

The Post and Courier

THE SOUTH'S OLDEST DAILY NEWSPAPER • FOUNDED 1803

FRIDAY, December 6, 2013

POSTANDCOURIER.COM

Charleston, North Charleston, S.C. ★★ $1.00

Vote gets I-526 out of slow lane

Date of project kickoff uncertain; compensation issues remain

BY DIANE KNICH
dknich@postandcourier.com

COLUMBIA — Nobody knows when work will begin on the completion of the Mark Clark Expressway across Johns and James Islands, despite the leap forward the project took Thursday.

But it will be years.

The state Department of Transportation Commission voted unanimously in favor of a revised contract for the completion of Interstate 526 at a meeting Thursday. The vote marks the first concrete step forward for the long-stalled project since Charleston County Council voted to move ahead with it in December 2012.

But many steps remain for the project. The S.C. Transportation Infrastructure Bank board still must approve the three-party contract; the state's Joint Bond Review Committee must approve the final $130 to $150 million; and various agencies need to approve four environmental permits.

Conservation groups have said they possibly will file lawsuits to attempt to stop the permits from being issued. Citizens could file lawsuits over compensation as well.

Please see I-526, Page A5

What's next for I-526

- The S.C. Transportation Infrastructure Bank board still must approve the three-party contract.
- The state's Joint Bond Review Committee must approve the final $130 to $150 million.
- Various agencies need to approve four environmental permits.

No dates have been set for these steps, and the project may require other steps as well.

What a vet really does

High-schoolers learn 'spectacular,' stomach-turning truth

Charleston Animal Society employee Paul Ayers (left) holds a dog and co-worker Bobby Blasingame draws blood as they show Goose Creek High School students what happens when a dog or cat arrives at the shelter. BRAD NETTLES/STAR

BY CHRISTIE COURTEREAS CASEY
dcourterreas@postandcourier.com

Veterinarian Brittany Thru held the euthanized dog's lungs in her hands and invited students to feel them.

"It's like organic bubble wrap," one student said.

Tina laughed and agreed, and she encouraged the group to use all their senses to make observations. Any student who wanted to feel the organs could.

"It was kind of crazy to see an open dog and touch it," said Said Kelly, a sophomore at Goose Creek High School, afterward. "We never do field trips like this... This was great. Awesome, actually."

The demonstration monopoly at the Charleston Animal Society was one element of a competitive program that is attracting attention nationally. The society's education team developed the Veterinary Science Initiative, which is offered throughout Lowcountry classrooms in an effort to expose students to veterinary science and the shelter's work.

"There aren't a lot of resources in shelters, so if you're going to invest time and money, you better make sure it's effective and it has multiple goals," Thru said. "The primary focus is getting kids interested in science."

Please see VETS, Page A5

Fast-food workers hungry for raise

Locals add voices to national protest

BY ABIGAIL DARLINGTON
adarlinton@postandcourier.com

Chanting "We can't survive on $7.25" and wearing shirts that say "SC Raise Up," a group of about 25 local fast-food workers and supporters picketed Thursday outside the McDonald's restaurant at 2050 Savannah Highway.

The protest was POLL

part of a 100-city demonstration by workers at fast food chains in demand of $15-an-hour wages and the right to form unions without interference from employers, although the $15 figure is seen more as a rallying point than a near-term possibility.

At a time when there's growing national and international attention on economic disparities, labor unions and worker advocacy groups are hoping to build public support to raise the current federal minimum wage of $7.25, just under $15,000 a year for full-time work.

Rob Green, executive director of the National Council of Chain Restaurants, issued a statement in response to the protests.

Please see WAGE, Page A6

Online

For video and more photos from the protest, go to postandcourier.com/multimedia.

Coming Sunday

The New Face of Upper King

After years of struggling to find its focus, Charleston's Upper King Street has transformed into a trendy hot spot for upscale restaurants and high-brow nightclubs, giving the city a true Midtown. How did that happen, who benefits and what's on the way in the years to come? In News

Mandela leaves imprint of hope, peace

Associated Press

JOHANNESBURG — Nelson Mandela was a master of forgiveness. South Africa's first black president, who died Thursday at the age of 95, spent nearly a third of his life as a prisoner of apartheid, yet he sought to win over its defeated guardians.

Please see MANDELA, Page A10

For an interactive timeline, go to postandcourier.com/Mandela.

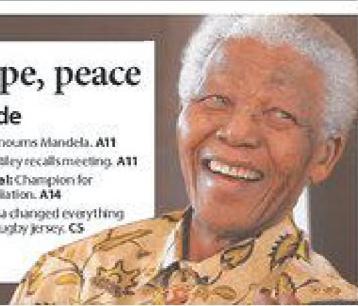

Inside

World mourns Mandela. A11

Mayor Riley recalls meeting. A11

Editorial: Champion for reconciliation. A14

Mandela changed everything with a rugby jersey. C5

FREDERIC J. BROWN/ASSOCIATED PRESS

Mostly cloudy.
High 79. Low 61.
Complete 5-day forecast: B8

Bridge 07 Cresswell 06, 18
Boiling B6 Editorial A14
Crossfield E1 Morris D4
Goris D6, 7 Monk D1
Obituaries B6
Sports C1
Horizon D5

Charleston Deals today

Sam's Closet
$50 worth of holiday wear and gifts at Sam's Closet
See A2

CMYK

Odd

Nelson Mandela dies

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — Nelson Mandela, who became one of the world's most beloved statesmen and a colossus of the 20th century when he emerged from 27 years in prison to negotiate an end to white minority rule in South Africa, died Thursday at the age of 95.

His death leaves the world with indelible memories of a man of astonishing grace and good humor. Rock concerts celebrated his birthday. Hollywood stars glorified him on screen. And his regal bearing, graying hair and raspy voice made him instantly recognizable across the globe.

As South Africa's first black president, he paved the way to racial reconciliation with well-chosen gestures of forgiveness, the most memorable before the 1995 Rugby World Cup final in Johannesburg.

■ For a look at the man who inspired countless millions, see our Special Report page on B4.

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 6, 2013

The Times and Democrat

75 CENTS • ORANGEBURG, SOUTH CAROLINA

TheTandD.com

3 SECTIONS, 36 PAGES • VOL. 132 • NO. 340

'Peace and joy'

CHRISTOPHER HUFF/160
People sing "Silent Night" during the lighting of the Christmas tree Thursday night at the Regional Medical Center.

Tree honors families and friends while helping others in need

By KIMBERLEI N. DAVIS
T&D Staff Writer

How can three dollars and a small light bulb impact the lives of people every day?

"The funds we've raised will benefit people in the Orangeburg community who have nowhere else to turn in their time of need," said Adele Palmieri, Christmas Tree Lighting Ceremony chairman for the Regional Medical Center.

The community gathered to "light our community with peace and joy" during the Regional Medical Center Auxiliary's annual Christmas Tree Lighting Ceremony Thursday.

For more than three decades, the RMC's Auxiliary has sponsored the event. It is the primary fundraiser for the Auxiliary's Verna Martin Compassionate Care Fund.

Each light offers individuals and families the opportunity to remember and

CHRISTOPHER HUFF/160
The star on top of the Regional Medical Center's Christmas tree this year honors the Regional Medical Center Auxiliary's Adele Palmieri, right, for her years of service. Also pictured is RMC Vice President of Strategy and Compliance Brenda Williams.

SCSU hopes for Cosby visit in 2015

By DALE LINDER-ALTMAN
T&D Staff Writer

Comedian Bill Cosby could come to South Carolina State University sometime in 2015.

Board Chairman Dr. William Small Jr. and trustees Tony Grant and Karen Dawson met with Cosby in November when the comedian performed at the Roger Center in Columbia.

Cosby, who has known Small for about 15 years, set up the meeting.

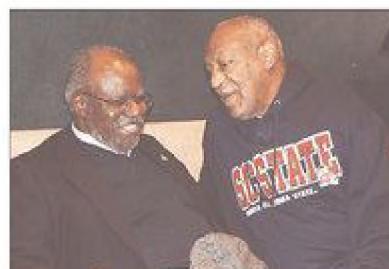

"We had a very good conversation with Dr. Cosby about South Carolina State ... and he has a very high interest in the university," Grant said.

President Thomas Elzey wasn't able to be at the meeting, so Cosby set up a conference call with him before his performance, according to Grant.

"The three of us talked and we got a commitment for Dr. Cosby to receive the president at a later time where we can talk more specifically about South Carolina State," Grant said.

Grant said he is "tentatively confident" that Cosby will ei-

See COSBY, A6

ALEXANDER GRANT/SPECIAL TO THE T&D
Comedian Bill Cosby, right, recently met with several trustees from South Carolina State University. He's seen here with S.C. State Board Chairman Dr. William Small Jr.

Prosecutors: One trial fine for Pinson, co-defendant

By MEG KENNARD
Associated Press

HIGH: 72
LOW: 63
Weather, 6B

Flatbread offering $8-for-$16 deal on Tuscan-inspired food at dealsaver.com/Beaufort

UNITED WAY FUNDRAISER

The Lowcountry nonprofit has raised more than $1.7 million, nearly 75 percent of its goal 2A

The Beaufort Gazette

FRIDAY, December 6, 2013

beaufortgazette.com

Established in 1897 50 cents

SEARCH FOR COUPLE

Missing woman's cellphone found

Investigators discover Margarita Gonzalez-Almazan's cellphone near the Chechessee River bridge in Okatie on Monday evening.

By REBECCA LURYE
rlyrue@islandpacket.com
843-706-8155

A missing Bluffton woman's cellphone was discovered soon after her disappearance, investigators say, and her family holds out hope Margarita Gonzalez-Almazan will be found unharmed.

The Beaufort County Sheriff's Office searched the Chechessee River bridge on S.C. 170 in Okatie on Monday evening after tracking the 47-year-old's cellphone to the location, Sgt. Robin McIntosh said. Gonzalez-Almazan was reported missing on Monday and is considered endangered, McIntosh added.

Deputies resumed their search of the area Tuesday morning, using K-9 units and Marine/Beach Patrol boats but uncovered no other evidence, McIntosh said.

Sheriff PJ Tanner would not say whether investigators had turned the phone over to the S.C. State Law Enforcement Division or another agency.

Gonzalez-Almazan was last seen early Sunday with her boyfriend, Osman Galicia-Escobedo, 40, of Bluffton, after

Please see MISSING on 9A

Heroes help health aide

From staff reports

Home health care is still a relatively new and changing field of medicine. As

NELSON MANDELA 1918 - 2013

A LEGEND LOST

“During my lifetime I have dedicated myself to this struggle of the African people. I have fought against white domination, and I have fought against black domination. I have cherished the ideal of a democratic and free society in which all persons live together in harmony and with equal opportunities. It is an ideal which I hope to live for and to achieve. But if needs be, it is an ideal for which I am prepared to die.”

— Nelson Mandela

MCT photo

South Africa's peacemaker dies at 95

By CHRISTOPHER TORCHIA and MARCUS ELIASON • The Associated Press

Nelson Mandela was a master of forgiveness.

South Africa's first black president spent nearly a third of his life as a prisoner of apartheid, yet he sought to win over its defeated guardians in a relatively peaceful transition of power that inspired the world.

As head of state, the former boxer, lawyer and inmate lunched with the prosecutor who argued successfully for his incarceration. He sang the apartheid-era Afrikaans anthem at his inauguration and

MORE INSIDE

A timeline breaks down Mandela's life and career of struggle and triumph. 9A traveled hundreds of miles to have tea with the widow of the prime minister in power at the time he was sent to prison.

It was this generosity of spirit that made Mandela, who died Thursday at the age of 95, a global symbol of sacrifice and reconciliation in a world often jarred by conflict and division.

Please see MANDELA on 9A

DOWNTOWN BEAUFORT

Marina planners gather input

A developer says data shows a need for more hotel rooms and upscale places for people to stay in downtown Beaufort.

By ERIN MOODY
em Moody@beaufortgazette.com
843-706-8154

Developers of the Beaufort Downtown Marina parking lot are examining data about the economics, tourism and residents of the city and how those numbers play into the public comments they're receiving.

Steve Navarro and Jim Chaffin of Historic Marina Partners met with the Redevelopment Commission on Thursday to offer a status report and hear more feedback.

The developers are a month into a two- or three-month information period that will be followed by the creation of a written plan.

Chaffin said the plan will then be brought back to residents for additional feedback back before a final proposal is made to City Council.

That final proposal is not due until May, according to an agreement the developers signed with council and the commission.

"This marina parking lot is both psychologically and indeed legally, owned by the people who live here," Chaffin said. "So unless we can come up with something that is additive to the lives of the people who live here, there's not going to be much enthusiasm about building there."

Navarro said the data is revealing a need for more hotel rooms and more upscale places for people to stay.

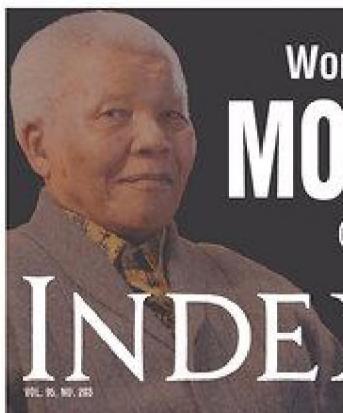

Please see MARINA on 9A

IN OTHER BUSINESS, THE COMMISSION:

- Heard from city attorney Bill Harvey in response to a Dec. 1 article in The Beaufort Gazette about the process used in choosing a developer for the Beaufort Downtown Marina parking lot. Harvey told the commission it did everything as it should have.
- Heard an update from commission member Mike McNally about the Lafayette Street housing project, which continues to be stymied by permit issues.

IN BENGHAZI

Slain teacher from US called himself 'Libya's best friend'

World reacts to death of S. African icon

MOURNING MANDELA

Coverage of his death, remembrances inside

7A

INDEX-JOURNAL

www.indexjournal.com

2 SECTIONS, 18 PAGES

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 6, 2013

DAILY 75¢, SUNDAY $1.50

Celebrating * the season

PHOTOS BY KATE HRUBY | INDEX JOURNAL

A live nativity scene is an annual part of "A Connie Maxwell Christmas."

By KATE HRUBY

khruby@indexjournal.com

Mists hovered low as visitors gathered Thursday evening at Connie Maxwell's Children's home for its annual "A Connie Maxwell Christmas." This year, more than two miles of luminaries graced the paths of the facility, shining brilliantly across the campus.

See SEASON, page 4A

Connie Maxwell hosts its annual holiday festivities

Decorations span the campus for "A Connie Maxwell Christmas."

ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

Project Rooster starts

Greenwood County Council OKs first reading on industry issue

By CHRIS TRAINOR

ctrainor@indexjournal.com

Greenwood County Council had first reading this week in regard to an economic development project that would entail a substantial capital investment.

Council took first reading on an ordinance that would authorize a fee-in-lieu of tax agreement for Project Rooster.

According to information provided by Greenwood County, Project Rooster is the code name for a "valued existing industry" in Greenwood. The project would encompass a minimum of $50 million in capital investment during a period of 10 years.

Economic development officials, county manager

See ROOSTER, page 2A

MATT BRUCE | INDEX JOURNAL
Meg's House Executive Director Alice Hodges, right, leads a discussion as Cornerstone coordinator Laurie Fallaw lists solutions during a domestic violence workshop Thursday morning at Wesley Commons.

WESLEY COMMONS

Joining forces to fight domestic violence

By MATT BRUCE

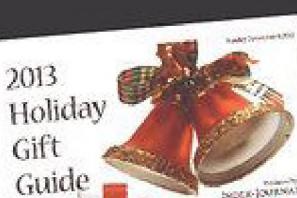

mbruce@indexjournal.com

A roomful of community leaders gathered for a common cause Thursday morning at Wesley Commons.

The condition included several law enforcement members, elected officials, pastors, social workers and local legislators. All were on hand to discuss domestic violence, an issue that sparked multiple deadly episodes in the Lakelands of late.

See FIGHT, page 4A

Coming Sunday:

Get the lowdown
on buying gifts

Greenwood takes on Clinton in

THE ISLAND PACKET

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 6, 2013

islandpacket.com

SERVING THE LOWCOUNTRY • 50¢

72°  63°

It's another great day to be outside. 6B

The United Way of the Lowcountry closes in on 75 percent of its goal 2A

Flatbread offering $8-for-$16 deal on Tuscan-inspired food dealsaver.com/HiltonHead

MISSING BLUFFTON COUPLE

Deputies locate phone in Okatie

By REBECCA LURYE
 rlurye@islandpacket.com
 843-706-8155

A missing Bluffton woman's cellphone was discovered soon after her disappearance, investigators say, and her family holds out hope Margarita Gonzalez-Almazan will be found unharmed.

The Beaufort County Sheriff's Office searched the Chechessee River bridge on S.C. 170 in Okatie on Monday evening after tracking the 47-year-old's cellphone to the location, Sgt. Robin McIntosh said. Gonzalez-Almazan was reported missing on Monday and is considered endangered, McIntosh added.

Deputies resumed their search of the area Tuesday morning, using K-9 units and Marine/Beach Patrol boats but uncovered no other evidence, McIntosh said.

Sheriff P.J. Tanner would not say whether investigators had turned the phone over to the S.C. State Law Enforcement Division or another agency.

Please see PHONE on 9A

American killed in Benghazi

Ronnie Smith, a teacher who called himself "Libya's best friend," is gunned down while jogging.

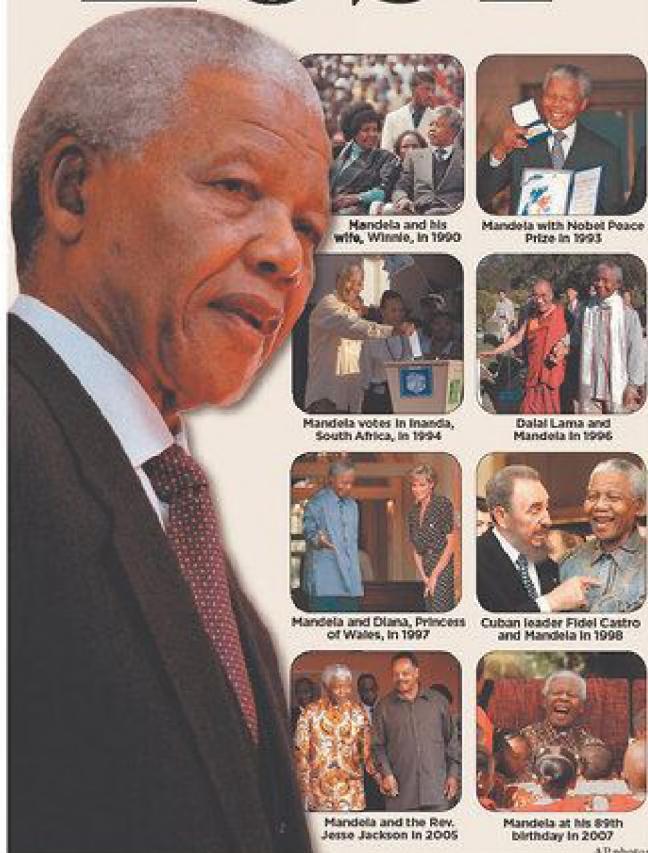

By NANCY A. YOUSSEF
 McClatchy Foreign Staff

CAIRO — A popular American teacher who described himself on Twitter as "Libya's best friend" was gunned down in Benghazi on Thursday while jogging, raising fears that foreigners are among

MORE INSIDE
 Efforts stall

NELSON MANDELA
 JULY 18, 1918, to DEC. 5, 2013

A LEGEND LOST

Mandela and his wife, Winnie, in 1990

Mandela with Nobel Peace Prize in 1993

Mandela votes in Inanda, South Africa, in 1994

Dalai Lama and Mandela in 1996

Mandela and Diana, Princess of Wales, in 1997

Cuban leader Fidel Castro and Mandela in 1998

Mandela and the Rev. Jesse Jackson in 2005

Mandela at his 89th birthday in 2007

AP photos

By CHRISTOPHER TORCHIA and MARCUS ELIASON
 The Associated Press

Nelson Mandela was a master of forgiveness. South Africa's first black president spent nearly a third of his life as a prisoner of apartheid, yet he sought to win over its defeated guardians in a relatively peaceful transition of power that inspired the world.

As head of state, the former boxer, lawyer and inmate lunched with the prosecutor who argued successfully for his incarceration. He sang the apartheid-era Afrikaans anthem at his inauguration and traveled hundreds of miles to have tea with the widow of the

ON HILTON HEAD

Rehab center plans on the table

Businesses are riled over a proposal that would turn The Main Street Inn & Spa into an inpatient treatment center.

By TOM BARTON
 tbarton@islandpacket.com
 843-706-8169

Plans to turn The Main Street Inn & Spa, a boutique hotel on Hilton Head Island, into an inpatient treatment center for patients suffering from drug and alcohol addiction and mental health disorders are upsetting nearby business owners.

Town Council's Planning and Development Standards Committee voted unanimously Thursday to recommend to the full council that the property be rezoned to allow the change.

"I respect their fears, but I don't believe there's much substance behind

Please see REHAB on 9A

ON THE WEB

Click on this story at islandpacket.com to view video discussing plans to turn The Main Street Inn & Spa on Hilton Head Island into a drug and alcohol rehab and mental health clinic.

Deep Well assists with flu medicine

Staff reports

Beatrice is 49 and works as a housekeeper for a local motel.

Last winter, she was out of work with the flu for six days and did not have paid sick leave.

She needed an expensive flu prescription, which The Deep Well Project approved at a local pharmacy. She then was unable to pay her rent, and Deep Well helped her make the payment.

Deep Well provides a broad range of social services for poor working families, the disabled, the sick and the elderly.

TO CONTRIBUTE

Those who wish to participate in the Empty Well fund-

NEW YEAR, NEW COACH

Can former NBA pro Jo Jo English take Gamecocks to the next level?

B1

The Item

VOL. 119, NO. 45 WWW.THEITEM.COM

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 6, 2013 | SUMTER, SOUTH CAROLINA

FOUNDED OCTOBER 15, 1894 60 CENTS

MATT WALSH / THE ITEM

A surveyor inspects the Kellys' fire-destroyed home recently. The family has moved from a hotel room into a temporary home.

Donations help Sumter family heal from blaze

BY BRISTOW MARCHANT
bmarchant@item.com

Slowly, but surely, the family members burned out of their home just before Thanksgiving are putting their lives back on track.

The family of Jerry and Natalie Kelly has moved from the hotel they were staying in after a stove fire burned through the home Nov. 20 and found a new place to stay. Their children are going to school, and both parents will soon be back at work in Sumter's law-enforcement community.

Natalie Kelly, a detective with the Sumter Police Department, credits the outpouring of support from family, friends and neighbors with helping the family get back on its feet, including money donated to a special account set up in its name.

SEE KELLYS, PAGE A8

Pinewood's mayor resigns from his seat

BY TYLER SIMPSON
tys@item.com

Pinewood Mayor Al Pridgen officially confirmed Thursday that he has decided to resign from office.

"I won't be coming back."

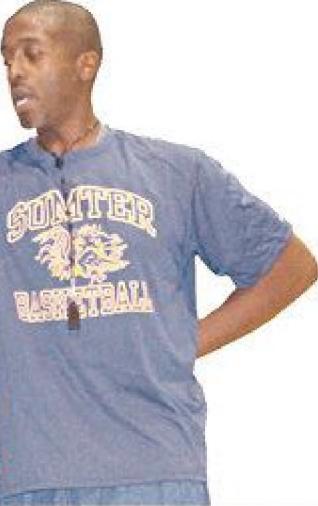

Locals react to historic figure's death

FROM STAFF REPORTS

Nelson Mandela might have been the cultural and political leader of a country half a world away, but the sheer magnitude of the South African's political courage and leadership echoed in the minds of Sumterites and South Carolinians throughout the state.

WE CARRY A LARGE ASSORTMENT
OF
CITIZEN
WATCHES FOR
MEN & WOMEN
30% OFF
JEWELRY WHOLESALE
41 E. Wesmark Blvd. • Sumter, SC 778-1031

6 holiday events to fill your weekend with cheer. A2

'President Mandela was a symbol of great strength and perseverance, of what could be ...'

Beloved South Africa leader Mandela dies at 95

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — Nelson Mandela, who became one of the world's most beloved statesmen and a colossus of the 20th century when he emerged from 27 years in prison to negotiate an end to white minority rule in South Africa, has died. He was 95.

South African President Jacob Zuma made the announcement at a news conference late Thursday, saying "we've lost our greatest son."

His death closed the final chapter in South Africa's struggle to cast off apartheid, leaving the world with indelible memories of a man of astonishing grace and good humor.

Rock concerts celebrated his birthday. Hollywood stars glorified him on screen. And his

SEE MANDELA, PAGE A6

THE JOURNAL

Vol. 109 No. 239

Follow us on Twitter  @UpstateTodaySC

Friday, December 6, 2013

75 Cents

AT LAST

Oglesby, Lions finally take aim at State championship on Saturday. C1

WEEKEND: 'Best Christmas Pageant Ever' opens at Clemson Little Theatre. B1

WORLD | NATION: South African peacemaker Nelson Mandela dies. D1

Inmate charged with attempted murder after alleged assault

BY NORMAN CANNADA
THE JOURNAL

WALHALLA — A Seneca man who has been in the Oconee County Detention Center for nearly 11 months has been charged with attempted murder in an incident Tuesday that left a fellow inmate in the intensive care unit of Greenville Memorial Hospital.

Millard Jerome Strickland, Jr., 35, of 306 South Pine St., was charged with attempted murder. Capt. Steve Pruitt, who oversees the jail, said bond had not been set for Strickland on the most recent charge. Pruitt said Strickland was being held Thursday in administrative segregation, meaning he is currently kept separated from other inmates. He has been held on drug-related charges since Jan. 12, and his bond before Thursday's addi-

Strickland

SEE ASSAULT, PAGE A5

PHOTOS BY JESSICA NELMS | THE JOURNAL

Accident interrupts services

At left, two men survey the damage after an 18-wheeler truck clipped a utility line near Stork Road and Radio Station Road near Seneca on Thursday, causing two AT&T lines and two poles to come down, interrupting both telephone and Internet service for several hours. There were no injuries in the incident, and AT&T spokesman Josh Gekubus said service was expected to be restored Thursday night.

Keeping bees alive

Local keepers fighting Colony Collapse Disorder

BY CARLOS GALARZA-VEVE
THE JOURNAL

WESTMINSTER — It takes quite a bit of planning to be a good beekeeper. Just ask Jack Collins, who's been one for most of his 25 years.

At the garage-turned-wood-working shop in the back of his country home on Cleveland Pike Road, Collins is getting ready for the spring arrival of hundreds of thousands of bees he purchased from an apriarist in Perry, Ga.

Collins meticulously cuts lumber he buys to build, sand and paint stacks of boxes with frames, where his bees store the pure honey he proudly jars, labels and sells. He'll also give honey away to relatives, friends and neighbors. He can get 8 to 12 quarts of honey from each box.

Collins, along with other beekeepers in the area, is staying

According to Westminster beekeeper Jack Collins, a bee has a lifespan of 28 days and works to produce 1/12th of a teaspoon of honey.

SEE BEES, PAGE A5

12 arrested in drug roundup

BY JOSIE RABBITT
THE JOURNAL

WALHALLA — Twelve people were arrested by Thursday afternoon and author-ties were continuing to look for another 10 suspects sought on a variety of drug charges in a drug roundup.

SEE DRUG, PAGE A5

Revamped program providing skills training for local industries

BY GREG OLIVER
THE JOURNAL

PENDLETON — When

that were low paying."

Worley attended a job fair at Tri-County Technical College and learned about production technician at U.S. Engine Valve in Westminster two weeks before he finished the class and is that's like family, and a lot of people have achieved 15 years perfect attendance. They want to be there."

tion program — as well as enhancing what is offered for students.

During a Thursday

— including OSHA, Six Sigma and Snap-On — and using hands-on simulations to increase students'

NELSON MANDELA, 1918-2013

South African civil rights leader, former president mourned worldwide. Page A8

Morning News

FRIDAY DECEMBER 6, 2013

The Voice of the Pee Dee

WWW.SCNOW.COM

75 cents

TODAY'S WEATHER
Partial sunshine,
high 80, low 64
DETAILS 2A

JOSEPH ANTWINE 1990-2013

The Citadel cadets of Mike Company say a prayer before the funeral service begins for Florence County Sheriff's Deputy Joseph Antwine on Thursday at the S.C. Conference Center of International Pentecostal Holiness Church in Lake City.

JOHN D. RUSSELL/MORNING NEWS

End of a too-brief duty

Florence County deputy died while fulfilling his calling in life, friends say

BY TRACI BRIDGES
Morning News
tbridges@scnow.com

LAKE CITY — They came from all over the state ... Myrtle Beach, Rock Hill, Darlington, Charleston, Columbia and The Citadel.

One by one, they filed into the S.C. Conference of International Pentecostal Holiness Church — some co-workers, some friends, others complete strangers — but all members of a universal family paying tribute to a fallen brother, Florence County Sheriff's Deputy Joseph C. Antwine.

During a funeral service Thursday in his hometown of Lake City, those who knew him best said though they will miss him dearly, they take some comfort in knowing he died doing the job he was meant to do.

"Joseph's calling was law enforcement. Anything he could do to help people, anything he could do to keep his community safe, that's what he wanted to do," said Michael Coletrain, Antwine's classmate and roommate at The Citadel.

"I got a text from him right after he'd gotten in his first foot chase as a deputy. It said, 'Train, I just got in my first foot chase, and need to talk to you NOW!'" Coletrain recalled. "I didn't know what was going on. I didn't know if he was in trouble or what had happened. So I called him and as soon, and the first thing he said when he picked up the phone was, 'Train, it was awesome!' We're all going to struggle to keep Joseph in our lives and in our hearts in any way we can, but if Joseph were here today, he'd say, 'I'm OK. I'm with the good Lord.' He's been called to his final duty, and he'd have it no other way."

Antwine, 23, was on his way to back up a fellow deputy on the night

See DEPUTY, Page 4A

The first of many cars leads the funeral procession for the Lake City native as it stretches from end to end of the town Thursday. View a photo gallery at scnow.com.

DONNA TRACY/LAKE CITY NEWS AND POST

include names on those as well.

Send to news@scnow.com and/or mail to or drop off at the Morning News, 310 S. Davy St.,

Digital billboard removed

Outdoor ad company plans to move Five Points sign to new location in wake of complaints

BY GAVIN JACKSON
Morning News
gjackson@florence-news.com

Morning News
Exclusive

FLORENCE — Weeks after a newly constructed digital billboard went online at the Five Points intersection, the company responding to local leaders' concerns from residents, said it will be taking the sign down from that location sometime in January.

Both Mayor Stephen J. Wukela and State Sen. Hugh K. Leatherman Sr., whom Wukela enlisted for help on the matter, said the news is a win for nearby residents and drivers who didn't complain of safety issues (the predominant complaint related to digital billboards), but rather the sign's placement by Adams Outdoor Advertising and its brightness. "The ones (complaints) I received focused primarily on the location of the sign, the intensity of the sign, the proximity to a residential neighborhood. You know, Five Points is a commercial area but is very approximate to a very large residential area," Wukela said. "And I think that the nature of the concerns of what I heard centered around that location and intensity."

One neighborhood nearby, between Cherokee Road and South Cashua Drive, surrounds the Florence Country Club and is filled with tall,

See DIGITAL, Page 4A

Adams Outdoor Advertising's $170,000 digital billboard at the Five Points intersection will be coming down in mid-January after it came under pressure from local leaders and its advertisers. The billboard will cost $26,000 to take down.

GAVIN JACKSON/MORNING NEWS

Bring on those letters to Santa

Dear Santa:

All we want for Christmas at the Morning News are some letters that children in our region are writing to you.

HONORING MEMORIES

Members of the Blue Notes choir from Southside Middle School perform Thursday during the 29th annual Meal and

Brian Symmes
Direct Line: (803) 734-0304
Cell: (803) 673-9437