Hon. Nikki Haley
Governor, South Carolina

Subj: Your political future

Dear governor Haley:

In my humble opinion, you stood an odds-on-favorite chance of being named to the vice presidential ticket earlier in the election. To battle Hilary Clinton, the GOP nominee needed a woman, and Sarah Palin was not a viable alternative to you. You are also non-White, and the GOP is trying to get an image of being friendly to non-white voters and women in the presidential elections, not so much in congressional and Gubernatorial elections. Then two things happened,

You gave the Republican response to the State of the Union Address. You cut up your own party members in that address.

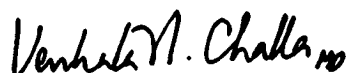

You endorsed Senator Rubio, and his political career is coming to an imminent end.

Now, your career will end as a successful Governor of South Carolina or you may have to run like Bobby Zindal and drop out of a Presidential race for lack of face recognition. Who is advising you on political strategy and career management?

Here is my sincere advice to you, watch the polls and if Rubio is trailing by 5 points or more, please hold a press conference on the day prior to the Florida primary and offer your endorsement of Donald Trump. You can also graciously retract your negative comments. That way you can get back on the horse for the race to be the VP nominee, who will later stand a chance to run herself for the POTUS. If Trump wins, Cruz is certain to be a SCOTUS nominee.

I am from your parent's generation. I have a very successful business woman daughter aged 44 years in Connecticut. If you need an advisor, with my experience in politics and debating, I will be happy to help. I am from a group of Indian-American doctors and businessmen supporting Gov. Pat McCrory of NC.

Sincerely,
