Subject: Immigration Update: Refugees are Now a State Issue

---

Hi Katherine,

Governors in more than a dozen states declared this week that they oppose accepting Syrian refugees, following last week's terrorist attacks in Paris.

The move is one more example of the role states can play in the immigration debate. If you are not watching state action, you are only seeing part of the picture.

Indeed, lawmakers passed 153 bills and 238 resolutions through June, according to the National Conference of State Legislatures. That means fully 46 states – and Puerto Rico – took action on immigration this year.

If you need to watch immigration issues, StateTrack can give you a complete look at the legislative picture in all 50 states.

You can get up and running immediately and be tracking as soon as next week. StateTrack gives you:

- Tracking for bills and regs in all 50 states -- never miss a bill!
- Updates on changes within 24 hours -- mobilize your team fast!
- Email alerts and reports, any way you want them
- A support team staffed with veteran trackers, who can help you track every immigration bill out there

While the immigration debate has slowed in Congress, it hasn't in the states -- and the issue is too important to get by on spreadsheets, free tools and cut-rate tracking. StateTrack allows you to track the action with confidence.
