WELCOME TO SMART CITIES NOW

Updates on smart city progress around the globe

NEWS & TRENDS

Transit ridership ignores gas prices: A public transportation trade group reports that U.S. transit ridership in 2014 climbed to its highest level in 58 years, despite a decline in gas prices. Has it happened in your city? And does it mean Americans are starting to buy into public transit for other reasons? Click for insights. MORE >>

Your city's new digital future: There's buzz this week about Apple's new smartwatch, but the Cupertino crowd doesn't have the corner on cool. Click for a peek at exciting new technologies coming from Qualcomm, including smartphones that recognize faces and places. MORE >>

Satellites coming to your city? A high level of connectivity is essential in smart cities – and the satellite industry has taken notice. An industry insider suggests satellite technology should be on the radar for smart city planners and developers. Find out why. MORE >>

PRODUCTS & SERVICES

The glaring gap in city cybersecurity: Your city's biggest single cyber vulnerability is likely its legacy infrastructure – older gear that doesn't have some of the more sophisticated protections now common. Read how Intel is tackling this problem for the smart grid, one of a city's most essential pieces of infrastructure. MORE >>

PILOTS & PROJECTS

No-touch trash handling A touch screen could soon replace people actually touching trash at waste sorting facilities. Learn why the system Veolia is piloting in France is not only great news for workers, but could also make a huge difference for cities and the environment. MORE >>

Business opportunities in India

As India continues toward creating 100 smart cities, there are opportunities for businesses to help. The U.S. Trade and Development Agency is hosting a webinar March 16 to discuss India's needs and how companies can help address them. Click for details >>
