

State of South Carolina Proclamation
by Governor Jim Hodges

WHEREAS, family and consumer science professionals work to empower individuals, strengthen families and enable communities by focusing on an integrative approach to the reciprocal relationships among individuals, families, and communities, as well as the environments in which they function; and

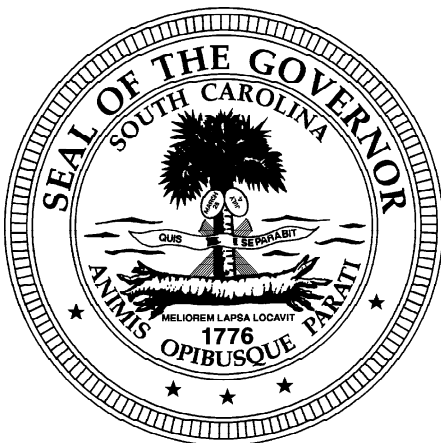

WHEREAS, family and consumer science professionals represent many diverse practice areas and content specializations, including elementary, secondary, post-secondary and extension educators and administrators; and other professionals in government, business and nonprofit sectors; and

WHEREAS, family and consumer science professionals contribute to a healthy, productive, and more fulfilling life for the citizens of the Palmetto State by developing, integrating, and providing practical knowledge about the fundamentals of everyday life - human growth and development, personal behavior, housing and environment, food and nutrition, apparel and textiles, and resource management—that every individual needs every day to make sound decisions.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Jim Hodges, Governor of the Great State of South Carolina, do hereby proclaim March 12 – 17, 2001, as

FAMILY AND CONSUMER SCIENCE WEEK

throughout the state and encourage all South Carolinians to recognize the many contributions made by family and consumer science professionals to the continued well-being of the citizens of the Palmetto State.
