Subject: CDL Certification/recertification

Thanks to everyone who has gotten through the CDL and passed with flying colors!

Several managers have asked me whether they will be receiving the 5% increase for passing the class as examiners do. The answer is "No." The requirement for managers to go through this class was set so that all managers who supervise an office that offers CDL exams would have a better working knowledge of the test and what specifically is required. I am sorry that the increase will not be coming your way, but I know that having the certification will help you in your supervision of other employees who perform these tests. And, you will be better prepared to answer customer questions, etc. as they arise.

Again, thanks for your hard work and for "getting under those trucks."
