Governor Nikki Haley said, " Any time you have director who has done a phenomenal job, you hate to see them go, but it's exciting when you can see an agency evolve." Haley continued, "Hartley's experience is everything, when we change directors we try to take it to a whole new level. We have done a great job focusing on the state brining jobs and reducing the unemployment rate. Now, we want to go in an assist the counties in any way that we can from an economic development standpoint and I think that Hartley is the one who can bridge that gap."
