NEXT STEPS FOR APCDs: US Department of Labor (DOL) Rulemaking

The Gobeille v. Liberty Mutual Insurance Co. decision dealt a blow to state APCDs by denying state all payer claims databases (APCD) the ability to require data submission from self-funded group health plans. Nationally about 63% of all workers with employer-based health insurance are in self-funded plans and that number is growing. The loss of this large data set limits APCDs' capacity to provide robust, all payer data on health care cost and quality. However, the Supreme Court's decision, particularly Justice Breyer's concurrence, suggested that the Department of Labor (DOL) may fix the loss of data to state APCDs by imposing a federal requirement that ERISA plans submit health care claims data.

On July 21 the DOL issued a Notice of Proposed Rulemaking requesting public comments on its proposed reporting requirements for group health plans, called Schedule J, and sought specific comments in light of the Gobeille decision. The deadline to submit comments has been extended to December, 2016 .

NASHP convened a workgroup shortly after the Gobeille decision to examine strategies to secure self funded data while complying with the Court's decision. In collaboration with the APCD Council and NAHDO, we have responded to DoL's proposed rules. See the response here .

Five Things to Watch from HHS's Latest ACA Proposed Regulations

Earlier this month, the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services released its latest omnibus rule proposing a series of changes impacting insurance markets and the health insurance marketplaces. Our latest blog and accompanying memo break down a few key concerns for states as they finalize their comments due on October 6, 2016.

Eligibility Levels for Coverage of Pregnant Women in Medicaid and CHIP

As a result of the Affordable Care Act (ACA) and the creation of health insurance exchanges, there are more coverage options for pregnant women in all states. NASHP has created a several resources to help explain the different eligibility criteria for multiple coverage options for pregnant women, including a chart that details income eligibility for each state's Medicaid and CHIP programs from 2013 – 2015 and maps that highlight the income eligibility ranges. NASHP also created two infographics that note enrollment steps for pregnant women with different income seeking coverage and raise policy implications for states.

Potential Options and Policy Questions for Improving Exchange Coverage for Children

If federal funding is not extended for the Children's Health Insurance Program (CHIP) beyond September 2017, some children may need to transition to exchange coverage. NASHP's new brief examines potential options and policy questions for improving exchange coverage for children in terms of both affordability and pediatric benefit adequacy. NASHP convened a group of stakeholders including state officials, health policy researchers and advocates to explore ways to maintain affordable and comprehensive children's coverage. The brief summarizes the key themes from the group's discussion and builds upon the policy options identified in this previous NASHP brief. Attending #NASHPconf16?
