Charter Stands For The Arts with Ovation

This fall, Charter is proud to continue our partnership with the arts network Ovation and promote their signature Stand for the Arts campaign. This national initiative is dedicated to raising awareness, protecting access, and encouraging support of local arts initiatives. We are pleased to join them in awarding a total of $120,000 in grants to a dozen different communities we serve across the country.

Several of twelve 2018 Stand for the Arts grants were recently awarded. We recognized the Buffalo Arts Studio which gives affordable studio space and exposure to visual artists and Latino Arts Inc., for its work elevating, enhancing and expanding arts in that community. We also recently joined community leaders, students and families in the Milwaukee areas to honor Latino Arts Inc., for its work fostering and uplifting arts in the community. We are proud to honor all of the 2018 Stand for the Arts Grant recipients.

Charter Applauds FCC's Improved Licensing Rules for the 3.5 GHz Band

The 3.5 GHz band is an important component of Charter's wireless strategy and also has the potential to provide a cost effective solution for delivering fixed wireless broadband including to less densely populated areas.

This month the Federal Communications Commission adopted new licensing rules for the 3.5 GHz band. By preserving significant opportunity for GAA unlicensed use as well as adopting a counties-based Priority Access Licenses (PAL) areas, the improved rules will promote increased competition and broadband deployment, bringing new innovations and the future of connectivity even closer for consumers.

Charter Proudly Supports Cable Industry's Annual Diversity Week

Charter Communications was honored to be a premier sponsor of Diversity Week 2018, an annual conference hosted by Women in Cable Telecommunications (WICT), the National Association for Multi-ethnicity in Communications (NAMIC) and the Walter Kaitz Foundation. The event, held October 15-17 in New York City, gathered together leaders in telecommunications to promote and celebrate diversity and inclusion in the cable industry.

Charter's Vice President, State Government Affairs, South Region, and current WICT chair, Marva Johnson (photo to the left), kicked off the organization's conference by highlighting Charter's commitment to investing in a diverse talent pool reflective of the markets and communities we serve. Charter's Executive Vice President, Government Affairs, Catherine Bohigian, and Senior Vice President and Chief Diversity Officer, Rhonda Crichlow (pictured above), reiterated that message during WICT's "The Other Side of Change: Leading through an Evolution" roundtable segment.

Crichlow kicked off NAMIC's opening general session and was also recognized by CableFax as one of 2018's Most Influential Minorities. Tamara Bowens, Group Vice President - Field Marketing & Sales Enablement for Spectrum Enterprise, received a 2018 NAMIC Next Generation Leader Award.

The conference closed out with a pre-dinner reception hosted by Charter, followed by the Kaitz Dinner, held annually to raise money for diversity programs throughout the cable industry. Charter is proud to support this mission and is committed to promoting diversity and inclusion in every aspect of its business. We look forward to continuing our support of these organizations.
