Description/Significant Features:

Single story, Minimal Traditional-style residence with a side-gabled roof. The front elevation has a projecting front-gabled section, which is accessed by a set of stairs on its south side and presumably contains an entry door at that location. There is a rectangular window-sized opening with a decorative metal screen and a single two-pane, sliding, vinyl casement window on the front projection; the gable end of this section is covered with vinyl siding. South of the front-gabled section is a shed-roofed portico, that is supported by round posts; beneath this portico is a tripartite vinyl picture window.

Alterations (include date(s), if known):

Differing colors on the brick mortar suggest that front projecting section may have once been an open porch structure that has been enclosed.

Architect(s)/Builder(s):
