Not from a substantive standpoint – we have always generally been for free trade, but there's a complex argument surrounding Cuba with history, national security, and US military presence. I don't see a need to proactively engage.

Hi Chaney,

I'm writing a story on what renewed relations with Cuba will mean for South Carolina, mainly in terms of trade of agricultural products, etc.

I'm talking to the Farm Bureau, SCDA, universities in the state etc but wanted to check in in case there's something on your radar that would be worth mentioning - exchanges, academic partnerships, etc. I know it's early days though.

Deadline is tomorrow morning.

Thanks!
