Notice the huge jump in water being sent to the coast. They have doubled the pumping. Why. Arrogance and stupidity.

All that rain from Irma did nothing except flood the coast while the Corp was pumping water from a drought area to a flood area. Did you notice all the homes that the Corp flooded in Houston with "controlled releases"?: Remember they built the dams that they said were in jeopardy Don't we need troops to go to Afghanistan? Join me and write your Congressman and Governor, Lt Governor and State Representative. Key. Eminent Domain. The FEDS can not do anything right.

Rant over for now.

Top 5 Things to Know in the Market on Monday

Top 5 Things to Know in the Market on Monday

Top 5 Things to Know in the Market on Monday

1. Global stocks push further into record-high territory

The bullish sentiment that fueled more Wall Street records on Friday carried through into the new week, with European and Asian markets rallying across the board, as global investors returned to perceived riskier assets amid cooling geopolitical tensions.

Asian shares hit their strongest level since late-2007, with benchmarks in South Korea, Hang Seng and mainland China all ending in positive territory. Japan markets were closed for a public holiday.

In Europe, shares rose to six-week highs in mid-morning trade, with almost all major bourses across the region in the green. Portugal's stocks outperformed after the euro zone country returned to an investment grade rating after more than five years.

2. Dollar climbs to 8-week high as Fed weeks kicks off

The dollar hit an eight-week high against the yen, supported by a rise in U.S. Treasury yields, as traders eyed this week's Federal Reserve meeting for insights into the outlook for monetary policy.

The Fed is widely expected to keep interest rates unchanged at the conclusion of this week's meeting, but is likely to announce a plan to start shrinking its massive $4.5 trillion balance sheet in an effort to normalize policy.

Markets will also be looking for further clues on the timing of the next Fed rate hike, with around 60% of market players expecting a move by December, according to Investing.com's Fed Rate Monitor Tool.

60%. I say 100%. Yellen and the Vice Chair will both be gone by February and the entire Fed is Obama appointees. The GDP is growing in spite of them.

They can't allow that.

3. BoE Governor Carney speaks at IMF

Bank of England Governor Mark Carney will deliver a high-profile speech at the International Monetary Fund in Washington at 11:00AM ET (1500GMT).

He has already declared himself to be part of the majority of BoE policymakers who now think the balance of its risks is shifting more towards high inflation and away from a Brexit slowdown in economic growth.

The central bank doubled down on its new warning that official interest rates are likely to rise soon last week.

Defeat Rump is the only important thing.

4. Oil prices stay near 5-month highs

Crude oil prices started the week on the front foot, holding near the five-month highs seen last week, amid optimism over the outlook for global supply and demand.

U.S. West Texas Intermediate (WTI) crude futures tacked on 22 cents, or around 0.5%, to $50.66 a barrel, not far from a five-month high of $50.88 touched last Thursday.

5. Bitcoin prices jump back towards $4K

Bitcoin, the world's biggest digital currency by market cap, surged back toward the $4,000-level, with prices last up around 8% at $3,943.
