When I was in 5th grade, we went on a field trip to the State House. While we were there, there was a protest to keep the flag up. People were shouting obscenities at teachers and even some of the kids. It's sad(but an obvious truth) to know that people still think this way, and we have to tear down the idea, piece by piece.

This flag has a lot of negativity associated with it. I can't see the positive in it because it represents and stands for the South. We all know what the south stood for and this is a representation of that.
