

From: Roldan, Cynthia <croidan@postandcourier.com>
To: Adams, ChaneyChaneyAdams@gov.sc.gov
Date: 4/13/2016 10:57:51 AM
Subject: Questions for weekender

Hey Chaney,

I'm just following up with another question.

With the House not concurring with Senate on the roads bill, and the Senate crawling on ethics, is Gov. Haley frustrated with the chamber's lack of responsiveness? Earlier this year, we discussed how she felt the relationship between the legislature's leadership and her office had improved. Yet, it seems like now they're paving their own way.

Begin forwarded message:

From: "Roldan, Cynthia" <croidan@postandcourier.com>
Date: April 12, 2016 at 16:09:33 EDT
To: "ChaneyAdams@gov.sc.gov" <ChaneyAdams@gov.sc.gov>
Subject: Questions on ethics bill story

Hey Chaney,

Here are some of the questions that have come up so far on the ethics bill story:

Why is did Gov. Haley become so frustrated with Lt. Gov. McMaster over his ruling with the ethics bill, when he was simply following the Senate rules? Sen. Martin, who was pushing for the amendment, did not fault McMaster for his ruling.

Does Gov. Haley consider having a panel — appointed by lawmakers and the governor — investigate the actions of elected officials truly independent or this just the first step toward more reform?

Why did she speak to McMaster in the library instead of behind closed doors, where conversations with McMaster were had previously?

I'll keep you posted as I go.

Cynthia